One Billion and Cheap
A Great Fish in the Sky
$200 for Rockefeller, Ford
Sinking the King's Yacht

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

Italy spent one thousand million dollars on Ethiopia, finishing in seven months a job that Europe's "military experts" said would require at least three years. How much would such a war have cost the United States, with one-dollar-a-year patriots acting as improvised Napoleons?

In the big war, not even our war, we spent about two billions on airships that would not fly and surface ships that never went to sea; spent at least fifty thousand other million dollars, and were cheated out of ten thousand millions that we lent to our "friends" in Europe.

Before it finishes, this country will pay out between fifty and one hundred thousand millions in pensions.

Mussolini's bill for a real war that really was Italy's war seems reasonable.

The dullest imagination must have been stirred by the sight of the great airship Hindenburg starting for home in the dark, heading from Lakehurst, N. J., to Frankfort, Germany. After midnight, the giant, silvery ship sailed over New York City and its eight million people, many of them standing in streets and on roof-tops, looking upward at a miracle wrought by man.

High in the air, with its great searchlight sweeping the city, the body of the plane looked like some transparent tropical fish, and men felt that they lived, as indeed they do, at the bottom of another ocean as they saw the huge air-fish sailing over them bound toward the northeast.

At one o'clock in the morning, the ship had vanished in the northern sky beyond the sight of New York, and before seven that same morning the big dirigible was flying over Nova Scotia.

After this second round trip to the United States, the Hindenburg will fly to Brazil and back, not returning here until June 22.

The sight of that mighty airship, while humiliating in its demonstration of American incapacity, carries at least the comforting reminder that "what men can imagine, they can do."

Americans can at least imagine almost anything.

Later, let us hope, when they return to normal, they will resume doing things.

Dr. Townsend emphasizes his plan's impartiality, saying that the $200 a month old age pension would be paid to J. Pierpont Morgan, John D. Rockefeller and Henry Ford, as to all others, only each would be compelled to spend his $200 within thirty days after getting it. That would be easy for the three mentioned.

Mr. Rockefeller has given to science and education enough to pay the $200 a month old age pension for about three hundred thousand years, and Henry Ford has paid out, in higher than prevailing wages, more than enough to pay such a pension for a million years.

The racing cutter Britannia, greatest winner of races afloat, owned by the late King George, will be "buried at sea" instead of being broken up in some shipyard. The fast cutter, escorted by many other sailing yachts, will be towed to deep water and sunk.

The sentiment that sends the fast yacht to the bottom would be understood by ancient heroes that had their favorite horses buried with them, sometimes, also, their favorite wives and other servants.

Marshal Badoglio, who cleaned up Ethiopia so swiftly, has been called to Rome, perhaps as part of a wise plan not to let anybody grow too big, like the tree Igdrasil, supposed to have its roots in Hell, its topmost branches in Heaven.

More probably, Mussolini thinks war might start nearer home and wants his best fighting men at hand. Youth, which thinks middle age should retire and make room, will observe that Marshal Badoglio is past sixty, as were all those that really amounted to anything in the big war.

Yesterday morning's London dispatch about Baldwin issuing a "stern warning to Mussolini," telling him to keep his hands off Egypt and Palestine, makes it probable that Mussolini, who does not like "stern warnings" aimed at him, has good reasons for wanting Badoglio in Rome.

Baldwin announces that his government, "responsible for the administration and protection of Palestine," will "discharge its responsibilities to the full"; good news for the Jewish minority in Palestine, where Arabs have organized riots and cut all telephone communications with the outside world.

'SKY SUICIDE BATTLE' GIRL FROM ALLSTON

IDENTIFIED IN WARD OF HOSPITAL

The girl who tried to plunge to death from an airplane yesterday, identified herself today, but she remains as much of an enigma to officials as before.

She said her name is Sue Limo, that she is 20, that she has no family and that she had no particular reason to do what she did.

The girl had chartered a plane at Boston airport for $17.50, had instructed Pilot Charles W. Sutherland she wanted to fly over the ocean, and when the ship was over Deer Island tried to jump out.

BALKS ATTEMPT

Sutherland had a dramatic hand to hand battle with her in mid-air, finally frustrating her death attempt. She is now at Boston Psychopathic hospital.

Dr. Riley H. Guthrie announced that she had finally answered the questions as to her identity. She had worked as a domestic for the past two weeks for Attorney and Mrs. Harold Cohen of Harvard avenue, Allston.

Mrs. Cohen confirmed the story. She said the girl told her she worked as a domestic for six weeks previously, at the home of a Mrs. Saul Moffie, in Beaconsfield road, Brookline.

EXAMINES CASES

Police examination of two suitcases the girl left at the Cohen home showed that one was crammed with aviation literature and folders. The other contained personal effects.

Her case puzzles doctors. Whether she can be cured or not is a conjecture. She will remain 10 days at the Psychopathic hospital, then may be transferred to another institution.

Dr. Winfred Overholser, state commissioner of mental diseases, said the case was one of a "depressed mental state." He said a specific reason was not necessary to induce such a state.

STOCKS UP

New York, May 22 (INS)—The stock market worked higher today, led by utilities and steels. Electric Power & Light was up nearly a dollar, Consolidated Edison more than a dollar and American Water Works close behind. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem gained a dollar and Otis and Republic were up fractionally.

STATE URGED TO INCREASE INCOME TAX

State income tax exemptions for married persons should be cut from $2500 to $1900, and for single persons from $2000 to $1000, the legislative committee on ways and means was told today.

A spirited plea for his bill to this effect was made at the State House by Representative Arthur I. Burgess (R.) of Quincy.

He estimated the change in the income taxlaw would mean $3,300,000 additional annual revenue for the state.

The bill calls for a tax at the remaining 1½ per cent rate. The would be $9 a year.

MORE WOULD PAY

Representative Burgess said a study had convinced him a large number of persons outside the tax limit now, by reason of exemptions would also be compelled to pay taxes.

Burgess met with opposition from Charles Rogerson, Boston attorney, who said:

"Everyone is agreed that real estate owners can carry no greater burden of taxes, but just as long as the state and its cities and towns can get more money they will spend it."

SPENDING LIMIT

Rogerson argued that it is idle and useless to raise new revenue unless some limit is placed on the spending of it.

He said he was particularly interested in the proposal before the committee on taxation to set a limit on real estate taxes.

He urged that the income tax bill be held up until after the committee hearing Monday on the real estate tax limit bill.

Representative Burgess, one of the bitterest opponents of the increases in the state budget bill which was passed yesterday—the biggest in history—said:

"I have spent eight years as a member of the committee on taxation, but I have given up all hope of economy in government.

"The bill to set a limit on real estate taxes is as drastic a thing as I have seen presented to the Legislature.

"Nevertheless, some such drastic step must be taken if the ever-increasing cost of government is to be checked."

Burgess' income tax bill would allow continuance of the exemption of $250 for each minor child in a married person's family.

Townsend May Face Trial

Washington, May 22 (AP)—The possibility of a court trial of Dr. F. E. Townsend for his defiance of a House investigating committee was projected today by Speaker Byrns.

Terming the pension leader's walk-out on the committee "a plain case of contempt," the Speaker told reporters:

"I expect the House to take whatever action is recommended by the committee."

After a conference with the group headed by Representative Bell of Missouri Byrns said he believed that instead of arresting and bringing Townsend before the bar of the House, the committee possibly would offer a resolution referring the case to the United States attorney's office.

HE PREFERS JAIL

This step, he said, would be with a view to having an indictment brought against the physician in the District of Columbia courts, charging Townsend with contempt of the House.

Byrns said he did not expect the committee to bring the matter before the House until next week.

As Speaker Byrns spoke, Town-

Damage was estimated at $3000 and was confined to the three rear porches which were completely destroyed. The side of the building was scorched by the flames.

The building is owned by Charles Schwartz of 206 Main street, Everett.

WOMAN SLAIN, BODY SET AFIRE IN N. H.

By ARTHUR J. QUINN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Chesterfield, N. H., May 22—The mountain-top wilderness torch murder of an unidentified young woman was revealed here today.

Forest fire fighters found her charred and broken body near the peak of rattlesnake-infested Mt. Wantastiquet, six miles from the nearest habitation and two miles from the nearest roads.

Flames which all but consumed her remains caused the woods blaze that led to discovery of the tragedy.

It is a crime of many baffling aspects, few clues and several fantastic theories, among which is the possibility the victim's flaming body was dropped from a plane.

The body was that of a woman between 25 and 35 years of age.

All clothing had been burned away and the flames had charred the body so it had broken in the middle. The legs and arms were not burned, but were fractured. The head and facial features were nearly intact. The hair had burned from the head.

Three feet away from the body lay a .22 caliber flame-scarred revolver, apparently recently fired.

Nearby were also the charred remnants of a suitcase in the ruins of which was the metal back of a hairbrush.

SAW SMOKE WEDNESDAY

A woman's shoe, only partly burned, lay near the remains.

The locale is one of the most inaccessible in the New Hampshire countryside surrounding Keene.

He had been guilty of attacking Miss Ruth Condon, 22, of Mt. Vernon street, Dorchester.

O'Brien was found not guilty on charges of two alleged attempted attacks on other women.

Miss Condon, following O'Brien's arraignment on April 11, identified him as the man who beat her in an alley on Jan. 23, leaving her unconscious.

GOV. LEHMAN'S DECISION TO QUIT BLOW TO NEW DEAL

PRESIDENT MAY MAKE MOVE TO DRAFT N. Y. EXECUTIVE

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Washington, May 22 (US)—Shocked by the abrupt decision of Governor Lehman, the New Deal political strategists today frankly confessed they "will turn Heaven and earth" to persuade him to re-enter the gubernatorial contest in New York.

Lehman's withdrawal was a distinct setback to President Roosevelt's campaign for re-election. He carried New York by 250,000 more than President Roosevelt in 1932.

Upon his popularity, and the respect in which he is held, the New Deal maneuverers relied greatly in the battle for the Empire State and its important 45 electoral college votes.

President Roosevelt will take an active part in an effort to "draft" Lehman. The President, however, is said grudgingly to concede that Lehman will stand adamant.

Lehman has sacrificed much to the public service. Now, with the recent death of his brother, his extensive business affairs command his attention.

BLOW TO FARLEY

The decision was a distinct blow to the personal ambitions of Postmaster-General Farley. He had expected Lehman to run again. He has desired to be governor himself at the expiration of Lehman's term.

Unless Farley is ready to relinquish his cabinet portfolio and his chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee and declare himself a candidate, he will be compelled to support any nominee the New York Democrats may select.

Lehman's withdrawal produced further complications with Tammany Hall. On the surface, the hall has been on the outs with the "New Deal."

Under the surface, the President and Farley have gradually been forming a combination with the Tammany leaders.

Both Roosevelt and Farley desire to control the state and they may force a battle with Tammany to designate Lehman's successor to the ticket.

Senator Wagner today laughingly rejected the suggestion that he will retire from the Senate and run for governor. Senator Copeland is without personal interest in the office.

New York adds to the internal party complications suffered by the "New Deal." In Illinois, Governor Horner won renomination over the opposition of the Democratic machine.

He believes he is without obligation to the Roosevelt administration now and will conduct his own campaign accordingly.

Under the impulse of Farley, Michigan Democrats are deciding to support Senator James Couzens, Republican, for reelection.

By this action, the "New Deal" manager is disrupting the organization which Michigan Democrats conserved through the lean years when the Republicans were in power.

Terry Carpenter, aggressive campaigner, won the Democratic nomination for United States senator in Nebraska after a hard and expensive battle, and he now finds he is to be "dumped" by Farley for Senator George W. Norris, Republican. Carpenter asks:

"Why a Democratic party if the people now in power at Washington will break it up for their own personal ambitions?"

In Massachusette, Governor James M. Curley has decided to run for United States Senator. While he publicly indorses the Roosevelt regime, he privately tells his confidants that their many obligations to him for his past loyalty remain unfulfilled.

In Georgia, the administration has incurred the unyielding disapproval of Governor Eugene Talmadge, while in California many troubles have been raised by the internal battles between the forces captained by Senator McAdoo and Upton Sinclair.

Ohio finds Governor Davey running for re-election despite the antagonism of the national "New Deal" leaders.

Strikers Stone Plant

Minneapolis, May 22 (AP)—A crowd estimated by police at between 150 and 200 persons broke a number of windows in a midnight march on the plant of the Northern Oats Co., closed because of a "sit-down" strike three weeks ago.

Soviet Flier Sees No Pole Landings

Moscow, May 22 (AP)—A Soviet aviator returned today from a flight which took him within 450 miles of the North Pole and said he believed there were natural, ice floe landing fields at the top of the world.

Townsend May Face Trial for Contempt

send, in Baltimore, said he'd "rather go to jail" than submit to further congressional investigation of his plan to pay $200 a month to everyone past 60.

Amid an uproar, the elderly retired doctor bolted the hearing yesterday, protested against "this Communistic dictatorship in Washington" and established headquarters in a Baltimore hotel.

AIDES IN EXODUS

Dr. Townsend was not the only one of his organization to leave the capital. In the small hours of the morning, every member of the personnel staff occupying 13 rooms in an office building here departed for Chicago, where new national headquarters will be established.

Even the furniture was loaded in vans headed for the same destination.

Sheridan Downey, Dr. Townsend's counsel, told newspaper men the pension leader was working today on the book he is writing regarding his movement and his personal philosophy.

"The doctor is writing a good book and is very happy," said Downey. "If he goes to jail it will give him more time to work on it."

TO QUIZ DR. POPE

The commitee itself took no immediate steps.

It filed into the hearing room about 11:30 a. m. and faced an expectant and curious crowd.

Then, in an anticlimax, the commitee immediately adjourned until this afternoon, when, Bell announced, Dr. J. A. Pope, advocate of a pension plan similar to that proposed by Townsend, would appear.

Bell and other committee members declined to discuss their plans. They said the contempt question was being considered by James R. Sullivan, committee counsel.

Townsend Prefers Jail To Grill; No Long Link

Baltimore, May 22 (AP)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend asserted today he'd "rather go to jail" than submit to further Congressional inquiry into his old age revolving pension pln.

The elderly California physician, who walked out on the Congressional committee probing his plan to give the aged $200 a month pensions, lounged in bed in gaily-striped pajamas, and said:

"If they want to cite me for contempt, I'll go over there and tell them just how much contempt I do have for the whole proceedings!

"But I won't face further investigation by the Bell committee and I won't face an investigation by Congress itself, or by any group in which there are men of that type.

"I'd rather go to jail and spend the rest of my days there."

NO LINK WITH LONGITES

He added there would be no coalition between his movement and the Share-Our-Wealth movement headed by the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, former chief organizer for the late Huey Long.

The Rev. Mr. Smith, former football player and a six-footer, physically forestalled efforts to stop Dr. Townsend's "walkout" yesterday and accompanied him to Baltimore.

The husky minister had indicated a desire to "join hands" with the Townsend organization against what he termed "this Communistic dictatorship in Washington."

"STRONG IN SOUTH"

"There will be no amalgamation of the Townsend movement with any other," Dr. Townsend said. "That was simply a friendly gesture Mr. Smith was kind enough to offer yesterday.

"He tells me that there is an intense political sympathy throughout the South for our movement and that his organization's members will vote for what we stand for.

"If there's any political significance in that you can take it for what it's worth.'

Referring to his leaving the inquiry, he said:

"Certainly I expected them to try to shut the door or detain me. The committee hasn't that power but it would have assumed it. It is the most reprehensible and ridiculous attitude that this Congress has taken."

Police Complain Club Barred Doors

Captain Francis E. Tiernan of Back Bay police station today charged before the Boston licensing board that officials of the Ring Social and Athletic Association, Inc., Massachusetts and Huntington avenue, delayed inspection by police for 20 minutes on May ..

When officers finally gained admission at 2:30 a. m., they found 14 patrons at tables, although under the rules all were supposed to leave at 1 a. m., the captain said.

No evidence of drunkeness was found, Capt. Tiernan added.

Dever Billboard Battle Delayed

Hearing of information brought by Attorney-General Dever against several advertising companies under the so-called "bilboard law" was continued today in Supreme Court until June 5 by Judge Fred T. Field.

Under the information, the attorney-general seeks to enforce rules restricting billboards within certain distances of roads.

Assistant Attorney-General James J. Ronan told the court the matter had been before the courts for about ten years.

Roosevelt May Confer In N. Y.

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, May 22—President Roosevelt expressed the hope today that Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York would reconsider his refusal to run for Governor again.

A few minutes before the President made this statement to his pres conference, Edward J. Flynn, Democratic leader of the Bronx, had left a conference with the executive predicting that Lehman would be drafted by the New York September.

"Governor Lehman in all probability will be renominated in September," Flynn declared as he left the White House, "and I think he will accept."

Advised of Flynn's statement, the President declined to comment. He said he could only say he hoped very much the Governor would reconsider because the state needed him.

Move Under Way To Nominate Young

New York, May 22 (AP)—The Evening Post said today: "A move to make Owen D. Young the Democratic nominee for Governor this fall is quietly under way."

It is backed, the Post said, "by some strategists in Tammany and in Wall Street." Young is chairman of the General Electric Company.

U. S. Man Called In N. S. Mine Inquiry

Moose River, N. S., May 22 (AP)—The Easter Sunday cave-in of the Moose River gold mine, that took one man's life, and held two others prisoners for ten days, was probed by the government today. Fifteen witnesses were called before commissioners investigating the disaster in which Herman R. Magill died and Dr. D. E. Robertson and Charles Alfred Scadding were entombed.

Harvey Higgins of Concord, Mass., who worked in the old shaft some 30 years ago, was one of those called as witnesses.

Find Youth Guilty In Double Slaying

Carrizozo, N. M., May 22 (AP)—Hollis Martin, 18-year-old Oklahoma youth charged with slaying his uncle and aunt, was convicted of first degree murder early today.

The defendant, whose trial on charges of slaying his nine-year-old cousin, ended in a hung jury several months ago, heard the verdict without show of emotion. He now faces a mandatory death penalty.

BOOM FULLER FOR PLACE ON TICKET WITH LANDON

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Although delegates to the Republican national convention at Cleveland will meet in what is described as a get acquainted session tomorrow evening at the Copley Plaza Hotel, the gathering has attracted state-wide Republican interest because it is so extraordinary.

Alvan T. Fuller

It appears, however, that several 1936 delegates are without political experience and expressed a desire to have their more experienced associates tell them what it is all about.

To the seasoned politicians, therefore, the expressed purpose of the meeting is being regarded as a curiosity. They could readily understand the situation if it were called for the purpose of organization.

It is being said that some delegates even thought that such a get-together could be conducted without the knowledge of the public.

FULLER TALKED IN '28

The meeting has started reports that former Governor Alvan T. Fuller might be launched as a candidate for the vice presidency, despite apparently reliable information that he has no desire to become a candidate for any political office.

In 1928, the former Governor was prominently mentioned for that post. If he could be persuaded to allow his name to be used this time, he would unquestionably receive the backing of the local delegation.

The Landon for President movement continues to roll up strength in Massachusetts. Every mail brings to the Landon for President Club of Massachusetts, with headquarters at the Parker House, batches of newly filled membership cards. They come from every section of the state.

One of the latest Landon Clubs is in Wellesley, where leaders hope to enroll all Republicans, as well as Independents and Democrats, who want to see constitutional government restored.

WELLESLEY LEADERS

At the head of the Wellesley Landon Club is Chester G. Clark. James A. Symonds is secretary. The directors of the six precincts are Mrs. Eleanor P. Case, Ernest E. Nelson, Mrs. Helen T. Robinson, Robert W. Puffer, Robert E. Blakeslee and Robert E. Savory.

The Landon for President Club of Massachusetts is co-operating to make a big success of the dinner which will be held in Mechanics Hall, Tuesday night, June 2, under the auspices of the Republican Club of Massachusetts.

Former United States Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas will bring a personal message from Governor Landon.

Sees Landon Sure On First Balloting

Trenton, N. J. May 22 (US)—Elated at the size of the vote cast for Gov. Alf M. Landon in Tuesday's New Jersey primaries, Republican State Chairman Henry W. Jeffers today predicted the Kansan's nomination on an early ballot.

While returns from the state primaries showed Landon with 28 pledged delegates and four delegates unpledged, Jeffers said he was certain Landon would have the solid delegation. Jeffers added:

"The only reason the four delegates elected were recorded as unpledged was because they neglected, when filing their petitions, to identify themselves as Landon pledged."

TODAY'S Boon-Doggle

The citizens of Clifton, Ariz., have done even better for themselves than did their neighbors in Duncan. The value of Works Progress Administration projects approved for Clifton represents Federal expenditures amounting to $54.35 for every man, woman and child in this little town of 2305 inhabitants.

If Clifton had had a ball team it never could have nosed Duncan out. But all it had was a ball park and no teams, so the Works Progress Administration will spend $23,280 to transform the old ball grounds into a recreational park.

It might have been cheaper to provide Clifton with a ball team.

KISSES Cost Teacher HIS JOB

WOMAN SEEKS RETENTION

Andover, N. J., May 22 (US)—Accused of indulging in the amorous gestures of kissing and hugging one of his girl pupils, R. Elwin Mattison, 35-year-old principal of the Andover Grammar School, has been dismissed from his position for "conduct unbecoming a teacher."

The only woman member of the Andover Board of Education, Mrs. Eda Kilpatrick, was among the minority of three who voted against the dismissal, which followed Mattison's trial before the board.

Six members voted for the dismissal.

Denying the charges of 15-year old Carolyn McDavit that he had showered ardent kisses on her and had just as ardently embraced her against her wishes, the handsome principal insisted that his conduct with his pupil never exceeded the bounds of classroom decorum.

Town All Atither

In fact, at the trial, which had this little town of 500 citizens all atither over a real, honest-to-goodness scandal, Mattison produced a number of character witnesses.

The witnesses testified that Mattison had never been known to them other than as a dignified schoolmaster devoted to leading his charges along the path of knowledge.

But, Miss McDavit, the accuser, also had her witnesses—three of them, in fact. Like her, they also are pretty schoolgirls and declare they fell victims to the principal's allegedly impulsive "after-school" nature.

Carolyn charged that Mattison professed a perfectly proper interest in her drawing lessons and kept her after school in order to aid the progress of her art education.

Instead, however, of bestowing upon her instruction, the school principal seized her in a firm embrace and bestowed kisses upon her, Carolyn alleged.

Youth-Age Clash Ends in Girl's Leap

Newark, N. J., May 22 (INS)—Sixteen-year-old Dorothy Wandling was in a critical condition in St. Michael's Hospital today, victim of the clashing viewpoints of youth and age.

"This is 1936," Dorothy exclaimed indignantly when her grandmother reprimanded her for staying out until 10 o'clock last night. Then while the grandmother, Mrs. Anna Wandling, rebuked the two boys who escorted the girl home, Dorothy ran upstairs to her second floor bedroom, climbed out onto the roof of a one-story extension and jumped.

She suffered a concussion of the brian and internal injuries.

The grandmother, with whom the girl and her father, Walter Wandling, lived, told police Dorothy had been out late several nights in succession.

BAY STATE CALLED PSYCHIATRY PIONEER

Modern psychiatry is no longer identified with the horrors of an insane asylum, Doctor Winfred Overholser, State commissioner of mental diseases told Boston University school of medicine alumni at their annual reunion dinner at the Hotel Kenmore.

The field of psychiatry has long since out-grown the walls of what were formerly known by the dismal name of asylums, Doctor Overholser said, continuing:

"Today, psychiatry is no longer the orphan of medicine, but is recognized generally as a specialty which has its bearing on every other specialty of medicine."

Doctor Overholser praised the Commonwealth for its leadership in the development and research of mental diseases.

"I need hardly mention to you the program in which Massachusetts was a leader, dealing with early recognition of mentally retarded children in the public schools; of that pioneer activity of Doctor Thom in developing the habit clinics in the child guidance work; and of the important pioneer activity of Massachusetts under the Briggs law of assisting the courts in their difficult task of dealing with defendants on the basis of knowledge of their mental condition.

"It is pleasing to note that this latter activity has been recognized by the federal department of Justice and public health Service in selection of Boston as the first place in the country to establish in the federal courts a system of psychiatric advisors to the court."

The work of Massachusetts in the prevention of mental illness was extolled by Doctor Overholser.

"Massachusetts was indeed the first state to recognize by statute the fact that a state, even if it gives every possible care to mental patients within its hospitals, is not fulfilling its entire duty to the community unless it takes steps to direct research activities toward the prevention and earlier cure of mental disorders with a view, not only to decreasing the sum total of human misery, but of lessening, as well, the burden upon the taxpayers of supporting its ever-growing institutions."

Doctor Overholser declared that the B. U. school of medicine, of which he is a graduate, was, along with the state, one of the pioneering agencies in the field of psychiatry.

Other speakers at the dinner included: President Daniel L. Mrash of B. U.; Dean Alexander S. Begg; Doctor Reginald Fitz, director of Evans Memorial; Doctor Henry Clute, professor of surgery. Doctors Rudolph Jacoby and Samuel N. Vose were in charge of the arrangements.

Mother Sees Quads for First Time

Passaic, N. J., May 22 (US) Mrs. Emil Kasper could find no words to express her feelings as she saw her own quadruplets for the first time in St. Mary's Hospital here.

Before leaving the hospital for her home in Little Ferry, N. J., she donned a uniform and mask, walked into the children's special nursery and looked into the incubator.

Frank, second-born of the four, was getting his minute ration of milk. The other three babies lay there quietly.

Mrs. Kasper put one hand to her forehead and stared for a long time.

Then tears flooded her cheeks.

It was a long while before she turned to Sister Francis of the hospital staff, mumbled a prayer and said:

"Aren't they marvelous!"

Infant Frances cocked her left eye. Frank yawned. Felix slept. Ferdinand, the Peck's bad boy of the covey, whooped for his grub.

Mrs. Kasper wept some more and then went out of the nursery. She has not yet ever touched her babies. Meeting Dr. Frank F. Jani, who delivered the quads 12 days ago, she said:

"Thank you ever so much, doctor. I'm sorry for all the trouble I caused you."

Baptists Approve Mitchell Resolve

St. Louis, Mo., May 22 (US)—A resolution prepared by the Rev. Rex A. Mitchell, militant opponent of the teaching of Communism in the Baptist denomination, and calling upon the Northern Baptist Convention to wage war on Communism "in all its forms," was unanimously approved at a luncheon meeting sponsored by Dr. Mitchell.

It read:

"Whereas, Atheistic Communism is sweeping over the nations of the earth like a tidal wave and is so contrary to the Baptist principles and the teaching of Christianity; therefore, be it resolved that we the Northern Baptist Convention go on record as being opposed to Communism in all its forms and far reaching program."

The meeting decided that Dr. Mitchell should lead the fight before the convention for adoption of the resolution.

Cruelty Stories Win Two Freedom

MRS. ETHEL E. RODENHISER

Mate's "Jags" Were Talking Kind

GIN DRINKER ACCUSED

More than a score of wives and husbands appeared in Suffolk Probate Court today seeking uncontested divorces.

Mrs. Florence Brown, of Beacon street, Back Bay, told Judge Frederick J. Dillon her husband Richard, drank three pints of gin every day.

"When did he drink the last one, when he was lying down?" asked the court. Mrs. Brown explained that he began drinking early in the day.

Many times, she testified, Brown came home under the influence, and with a "talking Jag," and created a disturbance. On one occasion, she said, he threatened to set fire to the bed when she refused to get up and talk to him. Police were called, she said, and he was warned not to return to his home.

Mrs. Ethel E. Rodenhiser, of Allston, divorced Leonard J. Rodenhiser, of Malden, when she testified that he struck here in the face, splitting her lip. He stayed away from home for days at a time, she testified, and did not give her any money for some time.

Mrs. Ada E. del Sordo, of Chelsea, won a decree from Ralph A. del Sordo, who was a U. S. Marine when they were married in 1924. She was given $750 total alimony, and the right to resume her maiden name of Rovetti after she testified to various acts of cruelty.

COATES, PANZ, SHURTZ!

Trial Can't Go On Without Vest!

Los Angeles, May 22 (US)—Case No. 11,263-C, involving illegal liquor transactions, was called by Federal Judge George Cosgrave.

"Your name?" inquired the court of the first defendant.

Coates, sir—Marvin Coates," replied the defendant.

"Coates," commented the court.

And to the second defendant:

"Your name?"

"Panz, sir—Tony Panz."

"Coates and Panz—well, well," commented the court.

To the third defendant, who had suddenly begun to squirm and loosen his collar:

"Your name, by no chance, could be—ah—collar, or cuff, for instance?"

"No, sir, no sir—it's—it's—"

"Out with it," ordered the court.

"It's Shurtz, judge, honest—Harold Shurtz."

The court took a swallow of water, and in a low, tense voice inquired:

"Are you gentlemen—Coates, Panz and Shurtz—represented by counsel?"

The defendants cast agonized glances at each other, but stood mute.

"Their attorney is Mr. Vest, your honor—Charles Vest, but he is not present," hastily interposed Assistant United States Attorney Jack Powell.

After quiet had been restored, the case against Coates, Panz and Shurtz was continued for a week, in order that Vest might appear with them.

SENATE MOVES TO RECONSIDER 'TAX ON TAXES'

Washington, May 22 (AP)—The Senate finance committee agreed today to reconsider its day-old compromise plan for taxing coprorations.

The sudden decision to backtrack on the agreement voted yesterday 18 to 1 was prompted by definite word that the compromise plan embhaceda tax on taxes.

Some committee sources said that to correct this situation would reduce the revenue yield estimated at from $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 by millions and necessitate turning to some other device for raising money.

One suggestion for regaining this loss was to place a 9 instead of 7 percent levy on undistributed corporation earnings, but a number of members objected to that.

The compromise plan called for a flat 18 per cent tax on total corporation net income and a 7 per cent tax on undistributed income together with retention of existing capital stock and excess profits taxes and application of the normal 4 per cent income tax to dividends.

The decision to reopen the whole matter came when committeemen found they had approved a proposition under which money used to pay taxes, since it would not be distributed, would in itself be subject to the 7 per cent tax.

EXPERTS LINK DEATH TWINE TO FIORENZA

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

New York, May 22—Two twine experts testified today at the trial of 24-year-old John Fiorenza, upholsterer's helper accused of the murder of Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton, fiction writer, that the 13-inch piece of cord the slayer left behind in the Titterton apartment was similar to twine sold to the Kruger upholstering shop, where Fiorenza was employed.

The witnesses were Abraham Strisik of the Empire Twine & Rope Company and Edward H. Ruthenberg, a twine distributor.

Their evidence was designed to bolster the prosecution's contention that the crime was premeditated. Previous witnesses stated Fiorenza took four feet of twine from the Kruger shop the night before Mrs. Titterton was strangled in her apartment.

IMPORTED CORD

Strisik testified the twine was of a type imported from Italy and therefore distinctive. He had examined the love seat Fiorenza had repaired for Mrs. Titterton and found that twine of this kind was used in the repair job.

Ruthenberg, who purchased twine from Strisik's concern, said he had sold cord of that type to the Kruger shop.

Mrs. Theodore Kruger, wife of Fiorenza's employer, testified that when the police were running down clues, Fiorenza asked her questions concerning ability of the authorities to analyze stains on Mrs. Titterton's bedspread.

READ CONFESSION

Detective Arthur Gribben, police stenographer, read to the jury the transcript of Fiorenza's police line-up examination.

Fiorenza, the witness said, admitted the attack and strangling of Mrs. Titterton.

He quoted Fiorenza, when asked if he told police he committed the crime:

"Yes, sir, I tod them I did."

Defense Attorney Henry Klauber succeeded in keeping from the jury Fiorenza's admission that he was an ex-convict.

The state rested its case at 11:05 a. m. after Assistant District Attorney Wm. O'Rourke identified the confession Fiorenza dictated to Detective George Swander.

IT RAINS ASPHALT

Gasoline to Pave Its Own Roads

Tulsa, Okla., May 22 (AP)—Oil wells which supply the gasoline to move vehicles were pointed out today as a new source of paving material over which to move them.

All petroleum contains asphalt, but much of it has not been utilized for paving because of impurities. By a new vacuum process of extraction, demonstrated at the International Petroleum Exposition, pure asphalt falls like rain out of a cloud of vaporized petroleum.

The still in which this is done was invented by Dr. Sidney Born, director of petroleum research at the University of Tulsa. The stills are steel towers, 40 to 60 feet high and five to 22 feet in diameter.

In the interior of the towers are almost perfect vacuums. Into them is run petroleum from which gasoline and kerosene have been extracted. The liquid is shot into the vacuum tower at 6500 degrees Fahrenheit, a temperature at which it instantly explodes into vapor.

Out of this vapor the asphalt falls completely pure in a coal black rain. By this method a 60-foot tower working automatically can make every day enough asphalt to pave about four miles of road.

BODY OF TORCH VICTIM FOUND ON MOUNTAIN

M. Burnham toiling up the wooded slope with a crew of hastily mobilized village firemen. The flames burned over between two and three acres and were extinguished Wednesday night.

Yesterday Warden Burnham released all except two men, remaining with them to guard against a possibility of the fire rekindling.

Last night, on the edge of the burned area and obviously at the starting point of the fire, the body was found by the fire warden and his two companions.

SOAKED IN OIL

Warden Burnham came down the mountain in the night to notify the authorities.

Sheriff Frank J. Bennett and Dr. Norris Robertson were summoned from Keene and guided to the spot, reaching it just before daybreak.

Sheriff Bennett said the body had apparently been soaked in oil before being fired.

Dr. Robertson agreed with him that the woman could not possibly have committed suicide.

The latter, acting medical examiner, said the most promising clues to identification were the revolver, the burned shoe and the teeth, which were in good condition.

LIKE COMET FROM SKY

As far as Dr. Robertson could determine from his examination at the scene, the woman's skull had not been fractured.

The body lay in a slight depression, brush covered, about 200 feet from the mountain peak. There were no cliffs or ledges from which the woman could have fallen to have suffered limb fractures.

No footprints leading to or from the body were found, a fact which, coupled with the general inaccessibility of the place, led one to surmise that the body, oil-soaked and set afire, might have been dropped from an airplane. No large trees stood near the body to have broken such a fall.

Dr. Robertson was unable to find any bullet wound. He said the victim might have been shot in the chest and the trace of the wound destroyed by fire. There was no head wound.

PROSECUTOR CALLED

"She had not been dead many days," he added.

Plans were made to carry the remains down the mountain to a Hinsdale or Keene undertaking parlor where Dr. Arthur Weston, medical examiner, will perform an autopsy.

County Solicitor Arthur Olsen was summoned from Keene.

The death knoll is 150 feet northeast of an old carriage road that once traversed the mountainside. This has not been used for 30 years and is so brush-grown in spots as to be impassable to any vehicle.

PUZZLING CLUES

Dr. Robertson said the victim was fully developed, slight of build, and that her hair had probably been brown.

A climb of an hour and a half is required to reach the place where she was found. Few hikers or travelers ever visit the region because of the rattlesnakes.

The broken limbs and fired remains were against any suicide theory. The gun and suitcase were puzzles.

Burning vegetation alone, Fire Warden Burnham said, would not have created sufficient heat to have all but cremated the body.

Mother Asks $2500 Death Trial Refund

Seeking recompense for money she laid out in his defense, a mother asked the House rules committee today for an appropriation of $2500 because her son was arrested and tried on a murder charge.

She is Mrs. Alice E. Spokesfield of Westwood, mother of Clifford Spokesfield, who was acquitted of killing her wife by throwing her from a bridge in front of a train.

Slender and soft-spoken, Mrs. Spokesfield told the committee members the money would not pay back all she spent, nor would it remove the stigma, but would pay the mortgage she was forced to put on her home in providing funds for her son's defense.

She was told by the committee her request would be taken under advisement.

Poor Aid Lands Forger in Jail

Declaring that most of his money went to feed needy persons, Lytell J. Newton, claiming to be an attorney from Dallas, Texas, pleaded guilty today in Suffolk criminal court to 11 eleven counts of forgery, uttering of forged documents and larceny from several Boston hotels.

He was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction by Judge John M. Gibbs. Newton told the court:

"I want to make a clean start. I was in the gutter and this is the only way out. Most of my money went for feeding other persons."

He was arrested May 16 by police, who said he had been passing worthless checks for over a year in cities all the way from Seattle to the East. In his possession police found over 200 blank checks and 60 auto registration blanks of various Southern States which he allegedly used to establish his identification,

More than 1500 newspapermen and prominent citizens from all parts of the nation gathered round the festive board to pay their respects.

Police Will Serve Callahan Warrant

The extradition warrant which passed them in the mails while they were on the way to Providence to return Thomas A. Callahan to Boston on a murder charge, was received by Boston police today.

Governor Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island mailed the warrant, which will be taken to Providence by the officers and served on Callahan, who is charged with the slaying of John "Keeno" Keenan in the Club Chalet, Tremont street, several years ago.

'BLACK LEGION' CLAN LINKED TO MURDER

Detroit, May 22 (INS)—Sixteen persons were charged with a murder today and 34 others were ordered taken into custody as police uncovered a secret organization known as the "Black Legion."

Police charge the "Black Legion" conducted several whipping "parties" and plotted the murder of Charles Poole, 33, former Works Progress Administration Worker, on charges he abused his wife.

Members of the secret clan, Inspector John I. Navarre said, also wore hoods.

FANTASTIC PLOT

Inspector Navarre disclosed a fantastic plot as he told of the rites of the "Black Legion" which led to Poole's death. The former WPA worker was found with five bullet holes in his body, which lay in a roadside ditch, near here, May 13.

Police were baffled by his death until Navarre learned of the secret organization, which, he said, was the offspring of a neighborhood political club.

Poole, according to Navarre, was condemned to die at a secret meeting of the "Black Legion." Navarre said 50 members attended the rites, including the 16 in custody charged with murder. The 34 others are sought.

Navarre declared the "Black Legion" decided to try Poole after two members of the organization, relatives of Mrs. Poole, complained Poole allegedly kicked her and broke several of her ribs. Mrs. Poole gave birth to a baby girl six days before her husband was found murdered.

"The 'Black Legion' also conducted several whipping parties, especially for wayward husbands," Navarre said.

Explaining the purposes of the organization, Navarre said:

"It had a slogan '100 per cent Americanism.' It stood for clean politics, the members tell me. It was anti-Communistic, and stood for good behavior of its members and also went outside of its organization to see that husbands did not abuse their families.

"Officers wore black capes and hoods, with skulls and crossbones painted on the capes."

ONE "CONFESSES"

Navarre claimed Poole's murder was "deliberately plotted" at a meeting of the "Black Legion." He claimed Dayton Dean, 36, confessed he did the actual killing and that Ervin Lee, 30, also fired several shots on the death ride after Poole was lured into an automobile.

"But Lee didn't shoot at Poole, Navarre said. "He just fired to whoop it up."

VETERANS URGED TO SPEED BONUS APPLICATIONS

Veterans are being urged today to speed along their bonus applications so that there will be no delay in delivery beginning June 15, when extra carriers will start out with the welcome letters at 5 p. m. and continue to 11 that night.

About 400,000 of the estimated 3,500,000 veterans entitled to the bonus throughout the country have yet to send in their applications, according to dispatches from Washington today.

The plan to deliver the bonus letters in the evening was designed by Secretary Morgenthau in order to be sure to find the rightful owners at home so that they may sign for them, since they will be registered.

CASH AT BANKS, P. O.'S

Plans to expedite the redemption of the bonds also have been made by the treasury and postoffices. Federal reserve banks and 250 postoffices have been authorized to cash the bonds after veterans have made proper identification.

In Boston arrangements for cashing the bonds include the opening of 18 units in state armories, town halls and public school buildings.

For the purpose of aiding the veterans to cash their bonds, Postmaster General Farley will make a nationwide broadcast June 13, explaining just how and where the men may get cash.

NIGHT DELIVERY

Of the 239,938 New England veterans, more than two-thirds have turned in their applications, it was estimated today.

More than $125,000,000 is expected to be in the hands of veterans residing in the Greater Boston postal district by midnight on the night of June 15. Thirteen hundred carriers will make the night delivery. Postmaster Peter F. Tague, in charge of the cashing stations here, announced today that every claimant must have two witnesses with him when he seeks his cash, and witnesses will be necessary when he signs for his registered letter. There are 87,000 claimants in this postal area.

No Handicap

Spartanburg, N. C., May 22 (AP)—A 30-year advantage in age and a 100-yard start failed to save Fred Gaden from capture by Richard W. Byers, 53-year-old policeman. Gaden, who is 23, fled as he was being taken into jail on a minor charge, and got a 100-yard start before Byers started in pursuit. But the fleet-footed officer put on a surprising burst of speed and caught the fugitive a few blocks away.

Board of Judges Picked For Braley Song Contest

DEADLINE MAY 23

New York, May 22—National judges for the Berton Braley ballad competition of the Hearst newspapers were announced today.

Widely known to radio audiences and in musical circles throughout the country, they are the most distinguished group to serve as a jury of awards in any similar undertaking.

The national board of judges is made up as follows:

DR. SIGMUND SPAETH, author, music critic and lecturer, popularly known as the tune detective because of his faculty to trace any melody to its source.

RUDY VALLEE, leader of the Connecticut Yankees, who put the modern definition of crooning in the dictionaries.

KATE SMITH, a household name from the Atlantic to the Pacific, who needs no biographical introduction to any American man, woman or child.

MABEL WAYNE, author of "Ramona," "Little Spanish Town" and other widely hummed songs.

JOHN W. GREEN, orchestra leader for Jack Benny's radio programs, pianist and song composer.

LEO REISMAN, violin virtuoso and orchestra leader, whose phenomenal earnings in music have won him the sobriquet of the Rajah of Rhythm.

LEONARD LIEBLING, editor of the Musical Courier, music critic of the New York American, and librettist for a half score of popular comic operas,

Bruce to Aid

Dr. Spaeth, chairman of the board, announced that the judges would have the assistance of Robert Bruce, author of "So You Want to Write a Song," known along Tin Pan Alley for his liaison work between publishers and song composers. Dr. Spaeth added:

"All the members of the board of national judges are genuinely interested in the outcome of this competition and believe it will spur the widest kind og interest among amateur and professional creators of melody."

Remember, the deadline for entries for music for "Just You," the first of the Berton Braley ballads, will be midnight, Saturday May 23.

Regional prizes of $100 cash will be paid for the best tunes received for this and another ballad. National prizes of $100 each also will be awarded for the two ballads. A regional winner is eligible for one of the national awards.

The rules of the competition are published on this page today. Entries of musical scripts, as well as self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelopes for reprints of "Just You," the first ballad, should be addressed as follows:

Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

Rules of Competition for Braley Ballads

The Boston Evening American is inviting amateur and professional song composers to write the music for two ballads by Berton Braley, the first of which appears on this page today.

The writing of this music is a genuine test of skill in musical composition and involves no elements of a game of chance or a lottery. Anyone may compete, whether or not he or she is a regular reader of the Boston Evening American.

A cash prize of $100 will be awarded to the amateur or professional composer who submits what is considered the most appropriate melody for each of the two ballads. The judging will be done by a board of musical experts selected by the Boston Evening American.

The date for the closing of entries for the first ballad—"Just You"—shall be midnight, May 23, and of entries for the second ballad midnight, June 23.

A similar regional contest is being conducted in fifteen other cities by the Hearst newspapers.

Musical manuscripts entered for regional or national awards will not be returned to the senders. This does not apply to manuscripts of prize winners, who will have their compositions returned and will be privileged to dispose of them any way they choose, the manuscripts being their exclusive property.

After regional prizes have been awarded in each of the cities where the competition is held the music of each regional winner will be sent to New York city to be judged by a national board of distinguisher composers who will award two national prizes of $100 each for the ballads.

The awards of the regional and national judges selected by the Hearst newspapers will be final and not subject to appeal, this condition being accepted by each contestant prior to submitting music for either ballad.

Entries should be sent to Berton Braley Ballad Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

Jail for Love

Miami, Fla., May 22 (AP)—Seventy-year-old J. M. Brian loves his hound dogs more than his freedom.

When neighbors complained that the dogs made too much noise, Judge James M. Dunn ordeerd Brian to get rid of them.

Brian failed to obey, and when summoned to court again, told the judge, "If I must go to jail for my dogs, I will go."

"Thirty days," the judge replied.

2 German Racing Yachts Dock Here

Two German racing yachts arrived here today in preparation for the trans-atlantic races from Newport, R. I., to Bermuda on June 22.

The two yachts, the Ashanti and Roland von Bremen, arrived on board the North German Lloyd freighter Anhalt at Mystic Docks, Charlestown. They will be rigged up today, after being hoisted off by the freighter lighter Eastern Chief, and taken to Boston Yacht Club. They will sail from here on Sunday to Newport.

Members of the crews on both yachts are university graduates and include hysicians, dentists and lawyers. Dr. Franz Perlia is captain of the Roland von Bremen with a crew of nine and Dr. Luto Lotowski is skipper of the Ashanti with a crew of eight.

These two German yachts during July will inaugurate a series of races from Bermuda to Cuxhaven, Germany.

Providence Gas Official Suicide

Providence, May 22—Medical Examiners today declared the death of Walter Lockhart, 54, official of a Providence gas company, was caused by shooting with a .38 calibre revolver held in his own hand.

His body was found in an automobile in Swan Point cemetery. He left no note and was apparently in good spirits when he left his office last evening. Friends said he had been in ill health for some time. He was unmarried.

May Rust

Aurora, Ill., May 22 (AP)—Sheriff Albert Kampmeyere was so proud when he became a grandfather that he promptly pinned a deputy's star on the one-day-old boy's three-cornered pants, making the infant a "duly qualified" officer of the law.

SPITALNY TO PLAY PRIZE-WINNING SONG

New York, May 22 (US)—Phil Spitalny, maestro of the largest all-girl orchestra in the country, announced today that he would feature the winning melodies of the Barton Braley ballad competition of the Hearst newspapers in his programs.

Paul Whiteman has offered to give contracts to the winners of the national prizes to compose other selections for him.

He is impressing on amateurs the opportunities afforded by the competition to gain widespread recognition as song-writers.

Spitalny, whose feminine orchestra is frequently selected by music publishers to play their new songs for the first time, said:

"I hope one of the outstanding winners in this competition is a girl, as I am planning to have her appear with my orchestra when it plays the melodies that are given national awards by the board of judges headed by Dr. Sigmund Spaeth."

The closing date for musical scripts for "Just You," the first of the Braley ballards, is midnight, May 23.

The second Braley lyric, "A Boondoggle Ballad," will not be published until after entries for the first ballad are closed.

Entries and all other communications with this national song competition should be addressed as follows:

ANDOVER CRASH HURTS WOMAN

Andover, May 22—One woman was critically injured and another miraculously escaped when their automobile crashed into a parked truck on the Andover road in Shawsheen Village today.

Mrs. Elizabeth Parquette, 34, of South Union street, Andover, is dying in the Lawrence General Hospital with a fractured skull, fracture of both jaws and a fractured nose and internal injuries. Physicians hold no hope for her recovery.

Her companion, Miss Bertha Willett, 32, of Cochrane street, Methuen, was treated for minor bruises.

The crash occurred when a light coupe driven by Mrs. Parquette, swerved at the junction of South Union street and Andover avenue and crashed into the rear of a truck loaded with iron.

When the coupe struck the truck, iron rods propecting from the rear of the vehicle, crashed through the windshield, striking Mrs. Parquette in the face.

Woman to Fight $3400 Balm Verdict

Miss Josephine E. Lagerquist of Brookline, through her attorney, today filed a motion for a new trial of the $100,000 alienation of affections suit in which a jury yesterday decided she should pay Mrs. M. Vivian Peirce of Hingham $3400.

The motion was filed by Attorney Raymond S. Wilkins, who alleges the verdict was against the evidence, against the weight of the evidence, and against the law. Judge Franklin W. Hammond later will set a date for arguments on the motion.

Miss Lagerquist was alleged by Mrs. Peirce to have alienated the affections of her husband, Edward Peirce, a steamship company head, now dead.

THE SENATOR

Curley Put on Spot by Women

When The Senator comes in he is puffing very heartily on what appears to be a cigar and there is a cloud of smoke trailing behind him, and you put a stovepipe skimmer on The Senator and immediately he is a ringer for old No. 318 which pulls the down freight on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights.

The Senator

But this cannot be a very good cigar, because Timmie suddenly grabs hold of his nose and he reels and he says:

"For the love of the landlord, Senator, what can be that thing you work so hard at to cremate? I practically swoon, Senator," says Timmie.

"This is a very nice cheroot, Timmie," says The Senator blandly, "which is give to me by John 'Cigars' Connors, the marathon runner, on account of he runs for state senator against Jimmie Henigan, in Wards 9, 10 and 11, which are in Roxbury, Jamaica Plain and the South End."

"Then I do not wonder, Senator," says Timmie, "that Cigars Connors never finishes a marathon, except horizontal, if the brand you now nauseate this place with is the brand he wears while running.

"And I do not doubt, Senator," says Timmie, "that if Cigars smokes these in the campaign, he wins in a walk with only his own vote cast, on account of all the other voters, including Jimmy Henigan, are unconscious."

Well, this seems to be a good out for The Senator to divorce himself from the cheroot because The Senator does not look so hearty himself in all this cloud of smoke, so The Senator drops it into the sawdust and moves away from the spot.

By this time, Timmie has poured out a stiff one for The Senator and a stiffer one for himself, and they both toss off their stiff ones quick and then they look better, with a little color coming back and all.

Wrong Answer

"What I come in to tell you principally today, Timmie," says The Senator after a while, "is the low down on how Mrs. Margaret O'Riordan comes to get the dogged old thumb down in Governor Jim's council and how this is all right by Governor Jim, even if he does go through the motions of renaming her.

"Governor Jim is very much in the middle of this thing, Timmie," says The Senator, "and how he comes to be in the middle is that he wants to name Mrs. Elizabeth McNamara of Cambridge for the job but, when he asks the women at a Copley Plaza banquet who they want, they give him the wrong answer and yell words that say Mrs. O'Riordan."

"You cannot ever depend on women, Senator," agrees Timmie sadly.

"Well, you notice perhaps, Timmie, that Lieutenant-Governor Joe Hurley does not vote on the matter of Mrs. O'Riordan at either council turn-down, and this is a play, Timmie, for Governor Jim's support of Joe, who wants the governor nomination.

"So watch now, Timmie, for Governor Jim to place the name of Mrs. McNamara in nomination, she being the Democratic national committeewoman."

Hayes in Again

The Senator waves his empty glass at this point, and Timmie fills it for The Senator and then fills one for himself, in case of any relapse, and The Senator then says:

"I hope you notice, likewise, Timmie, that Jim Hayes, the former mayor of Springfield, is confirmed unanimously by Governor Jim's council as chairman of the ABC, and that I warn you some time ago that Hayes gets this re-appointment only if Senator Frank McKeown of Springfield votes for Governor Jim's budget.

"Well, Timmie, I understand the way it turns out is that although Governor Jim does not desire to nominate Hayes for reappointment and McKeown does not wish to vote for the budget, they make a little deal together and McKeown votes for the budget, while Governor Jim names Hayes again.

"Governor Jim also has a little pressure brought upon him by a fraternal organization which has many important voters, I likewise hear."

"The political bed, Senator," observes Timmie a little owlishly after his two jolts, "has many strange slats, indeed."

"That it has, Timmie," agrees The Senator, "and a lad in politics must be careful of the slats lest he fall through and find himself flat and very sleepless, I assure you. Well, good day, Timmie."

With [illegible] The Senator turns abruptly and [illegible] charts out, carefully circling the sp[illegible] where he has discarded Cigars Connors' energetic cheroot.

Prober of Teapot Dome Case Dead

Denver, May 22 (AP)—Diedrich F. Stackelbeck, 57, Denver Post reporter who gained fame a decade ago by uncovering information which led to the Senate investigation of the Teapot Dome oil scandal, died last night.

Stackelbeck, a native of Germany, came to this country as a youth and had been on the Post since 1913.

SPOILS SYSTEM OF DEAL HIT IN N. DAKOTA

Grand Forks, May 22 (US)—The "extravagant inefficiency" and spoils system of politics developed under the Roosevelt administration drew sharp criticism from a group of prominent North Dakota students today.

Her own experience as an AAA employe was the basis of Marian Sarles' criticism. A juniolr and coeditor of the Dakota, student yearbook, Miss Sarles spent a summer computing fields and checking legal forms under the since-invalided farm program.

"The surveying was done by a former cafe manager, a college law student, and farmeres without engineering training," she related.

"Their consistent reading of 270-degree angles as 90 degrees necessitated complete rechecking by high-salaried AAA officials.

"It became obvious that AAA was attacking the farm problem from the wrong side in its attempt to benefit producers through destruction of commodities. There should have been an effort to increase the buying power of the farmer's money.

"Andrew Jackson would be a mere primary student in the postgraduate school of the spoils system now directed by Roosevelt," said Robert A. Buttz, varsity debater.

"This paternalism is really 'babyism'—all people have to do is cry for relief and they get it," asserted Fred Haas, co-editor of the Dakota, in describing the loss of individual initiative resulting from New Deal policies."

"We have come to the point where politics must be forgotten," said William Holland, law student and president of the publications board. "The New Deal's use of the spoils system should be stopped."

500 IN CAPITAL RACE RIOT

Washington, May 22 (US)—A milling crowd of 500 men and women, Negroes aligned against whites and police, waged a 20-minute battle as the aftermath of a free-for-all fight in which a bus was wrecked and a policeman lost his shirt.

The trouble started when a white woman attempted to push her way through the crowd to leave the bus and there was an altercation.

The driver tried to interfere and in a moment there was a battle. Hundreds of persons living in the vicinity joined the argument.

A riot call was sounded by police. The mob finally was dispersed and the bus proceeded on its way, but when it returned a dozen Negroes stoned it and a second riot call was sounded.

Four Negroes were arrested in the initial battle, charged with disorderly conduct.

WHITE HOUSE FETES VETS

Washington, May 22 (US)—A faltering army of nearly 1000 veterans, many of whom were maimed, halt, or blind, marched or were wheeled in chairs into the broad sunshine of the south lawn of the White House to be received by President and Mrs. Roosevelt, each in turn.

The party, an annual affair, was attended by cabinet members and their wives, Washington socialites and high officials in army and political circles.

Six Civil War veterans and veterans of the Spanish-American War, as well as a number of young men and nurses, were in line.

Camel's Aid to Digestion ... the Increase in Alkalinity ... Confirmed by Science

Many phases of modern life—the hurry, worry, and noise — tend to slow down the flow of the digestive fluids. But the researches of the great physiologist, Pavlov, on the digestive processes, opened the door for other scientists. They have found that smoking Camels encourages the normal flow of digestive fluids...alkaline digestive fluids...so necessary to the enjoyment of food and for good digestion. Smoke Camels as often as you like...for their cheering "lift" ...for digestion's sake. They never get on your nerves or tire your taste.

Consider the Pleasure of Dining de Luxe at the Pierre in New York

What will you have? Perhaps Borsch Polonaise, Supréme of Halibut à la Russe, Braised Lettuce, and String Beans au Gratin. Then ... a Camel ... a crisp salad ... a Camel again ... and an ice with demi-tasse and—Camels. M. Bonaudi, banquet manager of the Pierre, says: "Camels are by far the most popular cigarette here." Camels are a part of the art of dining today. They assist digestion—add to the sense of well-being that every one should have after dining.

"MY MEALS wouldn't be complete without a Camel," says H. J. Herbert, busy store manager. "I haven't much time for eating or resting. But I have found a great way to aid good digestion. I smoke Camels. They stimulate good digestion—help my food to settle right. I often smoke one Camel after another and they never bother my nerves. You can tell immediately, right after your first puff, that Camel uses finer, more expensive tobaccos. Man, what a taste Camels have."

RECORD SCHEDULE for distance traveled is maintained by A. L. Spear, engineer of the crack C. & N. W. "400" running between Chicago and St. Paul. "I've got to keep my digestion in tiptop condition," Al Spear is explaining here. "I light up a Camel after meals. It makes digestion easier."

GEORGE REIS wound up the speed-boat El Lagarto to over 55 miles per hour to win the famous Gold Cup Trophy race for his third straight time! "I'm a steady smoker," he says, "take a Camel as often as I like. I eat heartily, smoke Camels, and enjoy good digestion. Camels set me right. It stands to reason they must be made from costlier tobaccos."

WHIRLING THROUGH SPACE upside down. You see Mlle. Vera Kimris below, daring and dainty aerialist of "Jumbo." "Beginning my act is always a tense moment," confesses this pretty star. "Afterwards I want a mild cigarette—a Camel. I welcome the way Camels help digestion and good feeling."

• Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

3 ARRAIGNED IN CAMBRIDGE DEATH FIGHT

While Cambridge police still squabbled over the arrests, three men were arraigned today in East Cambridge on charges growing out of a fatal fist fight in North Cambridge Wednesday night.

Accompanied by scores of friends, who later wrestled with cameramen to prevent taking of the defendants' pictures, the trio charged with manslaughter and assault and battery, went into court and were held in $1000 each for hearing on June 2. All pleaded not guilty.

They are Thomas E. Kiley, 50, of Willow street, Somerville; James E. O'Brein, 46, of Huron avenue, Cambridge, and Harold Grant, 46, of Myrtle street, Winchester.

POLICE PROBED

They surrendered yesterday in connection with the death of Patrick Sullivan of Arlington following the fight, and with serious injuries suffered by his brother, Daniel Sullivan, also of Arlington.

Meanwhile, dissension in the Cambridge police ranks over the case was out in the open today with instigation of a probe by Chief Timothy F. Leahy into failure of Sergeant Patrick Ready to fingerprint the photograph the three men arrested.

Police officials say Sergeant Ready allowed the men to leave on $1000 bail without fingerprinting and photographing them.

SERGEANT CITES LAW

Informed that an investigation was under way the sergeant declared there is nothing in the law which requires him to make photographs or have fingerprints taken in any case.

Chief Leahy characterized the statement as ridiculous.

"These men were charged with a serious crime," he said, "and despite the existence or non-existence of a law requiring it, they should have been fingerprinted and photographed."

Ale Substitute Charge Against 6

Charges that six liquor license holders have been substituting other products for Pickwick ale were read out yesterday by State Alcoholic Beverage Commission inspectors to Chief Inspector Joseph O'Brien at the State House.

The session was in the opening of a drive to halt substitution of beverages for those ordered by customers in licensed places, according to Chief O'Brien.

Complainant in the cases against the six were Haffenreffer & Co., Inc., manufacturers of Pickwick Ale, and the inspectors reported they had made inspections and had found violations by the following license holders:

John L. Arauskas of Lincoln street, Brighton, the Lincoln Cafe; Peter Spanos, Summer street, Mallow's Spa; Archangelo Parziale of Chelsea street, East Boston, the East Boston Canteen; Joseph L. Zelaway of Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, the College Food Inn; Mary T. Catalda of Broadway, Revere, and James B. Clogher of Congress street, South Boston.

City's Poppy Day Set for Saturday

Poppy Day, Saturday, will be observed in Boston, as well as in every city throughout the United States. The poppies are made by disabled war veterans in 60 hospitals and convalescents' homes, and the money derived from the sales will go to them.

Flowers for auxiliary units in Suffolk County have been supplied through the Disabled Ex-Servicemen's Exchange of Boston. On Sunday, May 24, at 2:30 p. m., a wreath of the little red flowers will be placed on the American Legion lot in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Negro, Saved From Mob, Electrocuted

Nashville, Tenn., May 22 (AP)—E. K. Harris, 23-year-old Negro, saved from a mob whose clashes with National Guardsmen caused four deaths 17 months ago, was electrocuted today for an attack on a young white girl.

Harris maintained his innocence until shortly before the electrocution but finally made "a full confession."

Jungle Ball at Harvard's Lowell House Is Colorful Affair

By BETTY ALDEN

ALL THAT WAS lacking to make the Jungle Ball at Harvard's Lowell House complete was a missionary who was willing to martyr himself to the extent of climbing into the boiling cauldron and letting the hungry cannibals stir him up into good, tasty soup to satisfy their appetites for white meat . . .

A number of missionaries had the courage to attend, even though the cauldron simmered all evening in front of some realistic grass huts at one end of the ballroom . . . But they had temporarily set aside their efforts to convert the heathens and their capacity to become culinary delights . . . and their mission for the evening was solely one of celebration and tripping the light fantastic with the native belles . . .

MRS. KEITH STEELE

For most of the Lowell House men and their girls went truly native in their costumes for last evening's dance . . . the girls wore anything from swishing grass skirts and flower leis to demure little milkmaid outfits . . . and among their partners were warlike African chieftains with painted faces and befeathered headgear, tropical explorers, zoologists teasing the girls with real live baby alligators, Moslem priests and desert sheiks . . .

The whole ballroom was decorated to resemble a jungle village and at the end opposite the boiling cauldron a huge life-like elephant, poised for a charge through the thickets and tall grass, threatened to throw the dancers into confusion at any moment . . . All through the dance eerie green lights, alternating with soft, flattering pink ones, played on the faces of the dancers . . . The orchestra platform was surrounded with a barricade of thick grass, as if the players were in a stockade . . .

The idea of being dusky African damsels did not appeal to all the girls . . . so some chose costumes they considered to be more in keeping with their type . . . and many came in sport clothes and frilly summer evening dresses . . .

Virginia Locke found it difficult to catch any butterflies in a simulated tropical setting, but, nevertheless, she assiduously carried her net around and insisted she was an entomologist . . . Alice Davenport was a pretty little darkie mammie . . .

Dinner Party Precedes Dance

SIM MADISON, who was a witch doctor, awed everyone with his black magic, and strange as it seems, his practices didn't seem to bother Missionary Andrew Webster or Preacher William Hill, a bit . . .

Before the dance about a dozen men and their girls had a little dinner party in Lowell House dining room and seated around the table were Richard F. French, chairman of the dance, with Miss Elsie Angell who wore a crimson dress . . . Miss Jean Hewitt with Silas Phillips, Jr. . . . Ruth Grant in a black taffeta dress, escorted by Leavitt White . . . Frances Harvey with Perry J. Culver . . . Gertrude Allen with Brent M. Abel . . . William B. Rowley and Thomas Stephenson . . .

Jean Fuller and her fiance, Ben Prouty, who have attended many Lowell House dances together, were celebrating the last before Ben's graduation and their subsequent marriage late in June . . . Also there was Alloe Plimpton, Jean Kiley, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Steele, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Pierce and Mr. and Mrs. Mason Hammond . . .

Faith Clarke Makes Debut Tonight

THOUGH FAITH CLARKE is a little later than usual in making her formal bow to society, she has nevertheless been very active all winter in the activities of her sister debutantes and the fact that her party this evening comes late in the season makes it an even greater celebration for the girls who are just closing the final chapter of their debutante year . . .

Miss Clarke's aunt, Mrs. William M. E. Whitelock of Marlboro is giving a dance for her this evening at Acrebridge Farm, her country residence and Robert Haswell Clarke, the debutante's brother, is to share the duties of host with his aunt . . .

Before the dance the ushers and a small group of Miss Clarke's intimate friends will dine with her at Acrebridge Farm with place cards set for Helen Little and Priscilla Little, her cousins of Cambridge, Emily Sweetser who has come down from Bennington College for the party . . . Betty Putnam of Beacon street . . . Helena Thompson of Concord, Sylvia Carter of Newtonville . . . Hope Sweetser of New York and Gertrude Ogden of New York who is the house guest of Mrs. Whitelock . . .

Robert Haswell Clarke is the head usher and his assistants are the Messrs. Paul E. Geier, John J. Slocum, Charles M. Storey, Jr., Louis A. Little, Oliver H. Strauss, S. G. W. Thoron, Robert S. Chafee, Walter B. Rosen, David Rockefeller, David Schoonmaker and George S. Franklin . . .

Miss Clarke is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Lemish Clarke of Brookline and attended Miss Wheeler's School in Providence and the Cambridge School in Kendall Green . . . She is planning to attend college next autumn.

Harvard Freshmen Dance

THE FIRST YEAR is the hardest, but freshmen at Harvard find that their year of collegiate apprenticeship has its compensation.

Freshmen are seldom invited to deb dances and parties, and they must spend much of their time with their books, but every spring, when the debutante season of the winter is practically over, the freshmen burst forth with their one big dance of the year, The Freshman Jubilee.

This year's jubilee is being held at the Harvard Union this evening, and debs and sub-debs have come from all over the country to help the "frosh" with their one big celebration before the grind of studying for final exams.

Needless to say, many dinner parties will precede the dance, for the mothers of most of the committee members are lending their co-operation by acting as hostesses for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Henry V. Greenough of Brookline, whose son, Peter Bulkeley Greenough, is one of the industrious committee members, are giving a large dinner party at their farm in Carlisle.

Etiquette Classes Open Next Week

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WMEX

Webster defines etiquette as "the forms required by good breeding or prescribed by authority to be observed in social or official life." We like these observations on the subject by a well-known commentator.

"Etiquette is the art of knowing how to walk, talk, dance and eat one's way through the best circles without upsetting anything.

"Etiquette means 'perfect control' when entirely surrounded by food, curiously designed silverware, trick dishes, small talk, potted plants, pretty girls, and miscellaneous emergencies."

Much has been said about etiquette in jest as well as in seriousness and it is in poor taste to be too much addicted to correct form as it is to err on the other side. Social usage has become much simplified recently and we feel that the natural thing to do is the right thing, even though it may not be strictly according to Hoyle.

As entertaining is universal, etiquette must be adapted to people in all conditions of life—the home that is maidless as well as the home in which help is employed.

Our series of five classes on the Etiquette of Entertaining begins next Tuesday evening at 6:30 and Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 and will continue through June 23 and 24.

These classes will be as practical and helpful as we can make them and take into consideration all their varying conditions.

The classes are absolutely free—it is only necessary to obtain a ticket of admission by calling Martha Lee, LIBerty 4000, or writing Martha Lee, 5 Winthrop square.

Here are new ices and sherbets printed in response to a request from Mrs. Ina Potter.

Cinderella Girl, Leeds Bridal Near

New York, May 22 (INS)—William B. Leeds, heir to the tin-plate millions, and Olive Hamilton, his Cinderella girl, are not married—yet.

But they will be tomorrow.

Leeds' secretary, at his penthouse here, disclosed today a radiogram from Leeds sent from his yacht Moana cruising in the West Indies.

"We are not married, despite reports," he read, "but we will be married tomorrow on the Moana."

Thus, aboard the yacht she christened several years ago, the poor girl will marry the rich man.

Leeds met Olive Hamilton in 1930, a few months after his divorce from Princess Xenia of Russia, when he rescued her from the sea near Atlantic City, where she was just a telephone operator.

Tomorrow she'll be the wife of a man with $40,000,000.

Inciting New Attacks

Reds and Arabs In United Front

Herewith is presented the second of a new series of articles by Isaac Don Levine dealing with the Communist-inspired uprising of the Arabs, which already has threatened international complications and death and untold misery to Jewish refugees in Palestine.

ARTICLE TWO

By ISAAC DON LEVINE

The American Communists have acknowledged their "united front" with the Arabs in Palestine, and have come out in defense of the Communist campaign in the Holy Land to incite further attacks on the Jewish settlers.

While British troops are being poured into Palestine in an attempt to stop the spreading bloody disorders there, the Palestinian Communists are pouring fresh oil on the conflagration.

A new proclamation inciting the Arabs against the Jews has just been issued by the Communists in Palestine, according to a cabled dispatch from Tel-Aviv, of May 8, to the Jewish Daily Forward, from its special correspondent, I. Spiegelman. The report follows:

"The Communists have intensified their agitation against the Jews. All their previous instigations against the Jews were signed by local committees, by youth organizations in Tel-Aviv.

Incite Pogroms

"The latest proclamation bears the name of the central committee of the Communist Party. It contains all the prior incitements to pogroms. It also calls upon the Arabs 'to join the Arab general strike, to create a united front between the Jewish workers and the Arab people.'

"The abolition of the British mandate over Palestine, the abolition of the Balfour declaration for the establishment of the Jewish national home in the country, the establishment of a democratic people's representation, the stoppage of Jewish immigration into Palestine, and the suppression of 'military' Zionist organizations in the land."

The liberal Zionist newspaper, The Day, which at one time was inclined to favor the "united front" with the local Communists, came out on May 12 with the following leading editorial denouncing the [illegible]an Communists:

"The local 'comrades' have declared themselves in full agreement with the Communist party of Palestine and its incitements against the Jewish colonies. The Freiheit (Jewish Communist newspaper), printed yesterday the full text of the proclamation issued by the Communist party of Palestine, with the comment:

Denounced Reds

[illegible] is a consistent proclamation. This is the way revolution[illegible] talk!"

[illegible] a fact which we wish [illegible]

"The local Communists no longer repudiate the policy of the Communist party of Palestine, but acknowledge it. Moreover, they praise it. The local 'comrades' openly defend the activities of the Communists in Palestine. They share the same viewpoint. There is no difference between them any more.

"The world knows only too well what that viewpoint is. The proclamation expresses it clearly and pointedly! The attack was made not by the Arabs against the Jews, but by the Jews against the Arabs!

"The Communist proclamation speaks of the Zionist bloody attack. The responsibility for the bloodshed is put, not on the heads of the Arab pogromists, but on the Jewish self-defense! And the demand is raised for the stoppage of Jewish immigration into Palestine.

"Such is the policy of the Communist Party in Palestine. It is a policy which the local Communists now defend openly, without shame and without their usual hypocrisy.

"It is no longer necessary to argue with them. It is no longer prudent to enter into disputes with them. There is nothing more to be said. The approval by the local Communists of the Communist proclamation in Palestine speaks for itself.

"All that we wish to do here is to emphasize this outrageous treacherous act against the welfare of the Jews, not only in Palestine but throughout the world. Let the large Jewish public in America remember it, let it know with whom we are dealing, and draw the proper conclusions from it."

The third in the series of articles by Isaac Don Levine will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Reds in America, Palestine Scored

New York, May 22 (US)—Communists in Palestine and America were denounced at a mass meeting in Cooper Union last night for their part in inciting the Arabs to attack Jewish workers in the Holy Land.

More than 3500 persons crowded the meeting hall and loudly applauded as speakers lashed the red dictated pogroms.

A resolution condemning the Communist proclamation against the Jews and calling for a boycott of the Communistic press was passed unanimously by acclamation. It also called upon Jews in America to unite their ranks behind the workers in Palestine.

The meeting was called by the central committee of the Jewish Socialist Labor Party and was marked by an address by Joseph Schlossberg, general secretary of the Amalgamated Ladies' Clothing Workers of America.

CONSTIPATION* MAY CUT DOWN YOUR ENJOYMENT OF LIFE

Long Neglected, It May Even Develop Serious Consequences

Common constipation* keeps you from being at your best. It causes discomfort, and may lead to headaches and loss of appetite. You feel below par, lack your usual vigor.

So many people treat this condition as a slight matter. But it can be the starting point of serious trouble. It contributes to a general run-down condition. With lowered body resistance, you are more likely to pick up the first chance infection you meet in your everyday routine.

Common constipation is due usually to insufficient "bulk" in meals. Fortunately, a delicious cereal supplies gentle "bulk." Within the body, the "bulk" in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, and cleanses the system.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, with milk or cream, or cook into muffins, breads, etc. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Stubborn cases may require ALL-BRAN oftener. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company as an effective laxative food for constipation.* Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

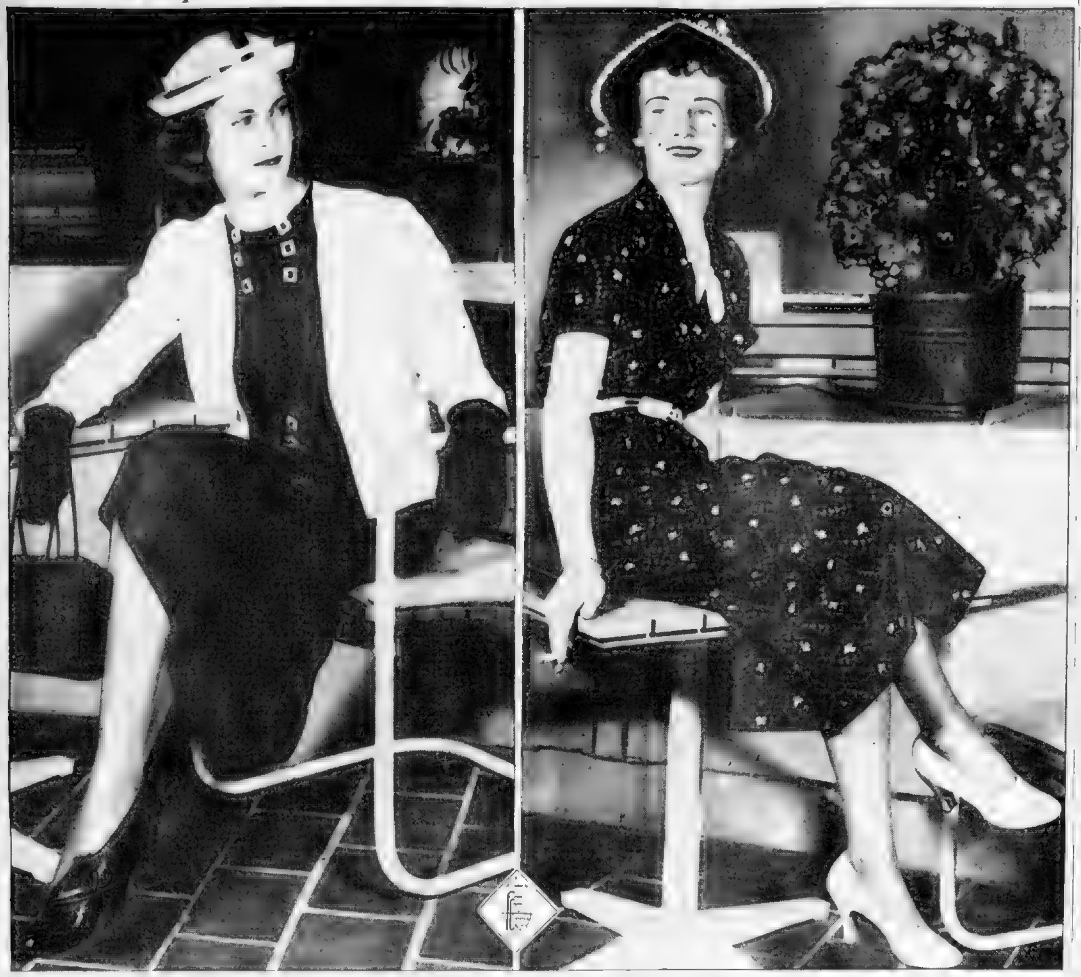
Keep Cool in Linens and Cottons Advises Congress



BRING ON your best brand of hot weather, Mr. Forecaster! Fashion Congress inspired wardrobes will help every smart girl to keep that lettuce just-out-of-ice-water look on days when the town is just one big sizzle. Here are two Congress selections—a creaseless linen suit and a print pique that's quite as important as many a silk frock.

Left, Miss Betsy Jaques, Gloucester street debutante, models creaseless linen in the ever-chic black and white partnership. The short jacket has box pleats in back. White bone buttons accent the neck and belt of the simple linen frock. And carrying on the pert mood is a pique hat trimmed with black patent. Black string gloves and a black patent bag place the outfit definitely within town limits. Linen ensemble, under eight dollars!

Right, Miss Marietta Howe, Needham deb, models black and white printed pique that buttons down the front, has a kid and pearl belt and an interesting cross-strap arrangement buttoning down the revers. You'll never find more certain proof of cotton's ability to express a sophisticated and important effect. Rilla Marie designed the fetching poke bonnet of stitched black crepe with an edging of ric-rac braid. A naive touch that's highly effective in the black-and-white scheme.

For shopping information on any of these Fashion Congress selections, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

Luxury Model

By MAY CHRISTIE

The Angelus bells brought tears to her eyes, they were so beautiful.

One night when Luana was a little late in coming from the hospital, Nancy and Jaseph and dinner awaited her.

The young couple whiled away the time by turning on the radio to hear the seven o'clock news.

After world events came local news.

"Another break from the State Prison has been successfully perpetrated early this morning but, through the vigilance of the guards, an even greater break has been prevented. Only two felons made their get-away by sawing the bars of their cell.

"Prison authorities are puzzled at the slick escape of the polished defrauder of thousands of innocent Californian investors. Gerald Bruton has again lived up to his name of 'Slippery.' He and his cell mate made their get-away just before daybreak."

White-faced, Nancy and Jasper stared at each other.

"We'll have to tell her. I hate to tell her. But what else can we do?"

Would He Come?

Jasper Payne looked severely at his young bride.

"Look here, Nancy, there's no necessity whatever of telling her. You're a [illegible], that's what you are."

"What on earth do you mean?" Nancy [illegible] perturbed [illegible].

"Women can't keep their mouths shut." Jasper could come tersely to the point at times.

"But it's for her own good. [illegible] try to get in touch with her. He'll want money. [illegible] she married him, Jasper. She's beautiful. [illegible] interrupted. He [illegible] "Can't you understand?" [illegible] go through with the honeymoon he didn't have! Don't you realize that?"

Now Jasper was no fool. He [illegible] "I AM" with her but in his heart he had a respect for feminine [illegible] for the quick [illegible] on the heels of feminine logic.

"The crook had [illegible] in marrying the girl [illegible] going through a ceremony of marriage in Yuma. He believed, no doubt, that he had been [illegible] at the last minute. Whether he had a legal wife had not much actual bearing on his attitude. The law meant nothing to him. Nor did social ties. His attitude proved that. And his record, too.

"He won't come near San Francisco. He wouldn't be such a prize fool."

"Where a woman's concerned," said the [illegible] Nancy, "[illegible] simply can't tell what a man will do. Particularly," she added, meaningly, "a man who's been shut away from women for a long stretch as he has. Jasper, he was only out of prison a bare month before he met Elizabeth on the train coming from college and he wasted no time in going through the marriage ceremony with her."

"That was largely your fault. You put the idea in her head. You played [illegible]."

"Because I was so crazy about you, darling," [illegible] her belated comprehension [illegible] for Jasper had [illegible] Nancy [illegible].

He looked mollified.

"Okay. Granted. But believe me, Gerald Bruton's a tough bird. If, as you claim, he's going to try and get in touch with Elizabeth—otherwise Luana, though I can't get used to calling her by her new name, I'd say it would be more out of a spirit of revenge than passion.

"He'll Trace Her"

"You remember she told us how callous he was to her after he was arrested in San Diego—he blamed her and her delay there for his arrest—he wanted to get clear across the border into Mexico but she was tired out after being up all night at the Miramar and then flying to Yuma. Personally," Jasper lit a cigarette and blew a ring of smoke into the air—"I'd say his idea would be vendetta rather than lovemaking."

Which was a long speech for Jasper.

It carried weight with Nancy.

But she doubted its logic.

"I think the first thing he'll do is telephone the orange grove on Ventura boulevard, just out of Hollywood."

"It's closed. Old Martha went to stay with a married sister in Hermosa Beach when the Colonel came up here on strike-duty. Elizabeth—I mean Luana told me so."

"He'll trace her."

"He can't. She's changed her name. She's faded out of the Californian picture.

"She got loads of publicity in New York. Wasn't in every recent issue of the Sunday Examiner in the American Weekly section, there was a full length picture of her with that little monkey she's so fond of."

"And under the photograph the name 'Luana Waters.' Those good looking blonde girls all have the same kind of looks. He wouldn't recognize it if he saw it—which I doubt he would in San Quentin," averred the obstinate Jasper. "I doubt if they're even permitted to see the Sunday papers."

Nancy remained unconvinced.

"I think we ought to tell her, Jasper. You think he wouldn't come near San Francisco, because of the people gunning for him through his swindles but I think the man's a desperado. I don't mind telling you now that I myself was attracted to him just through that very dare-deviltry of his."

"Is that so?" said Jasper ominously.

But if he expected Nancy to wilt he was disappointed.

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised if the first thing he does after [illegible] her home and not finding a reply from it is to look in the telephone book for your name. He was with us in an important moment of his life. No matter how hardened he may be he must remember it.

"That scene at Yuma—how hot it was that morning. I remember how he insisted on [illegible] the news photographers [illegible] remember [illegible] Jasper, we were Elizabeth's friends he'll try to get in touch with us and find out where she is."

"I differ," [illegible] Jasper, hating to give in because his assumption of superiority was his biggest asset with Nancy. "He'll clear right out of the State of California.

"Meantime I've an idea which will kill two birds simultaneously. Tomorrow's Admission Day, a legal holiday and the bank will be closed. Why shouldn't the three of us drive down tonight to the shack at San Gregorio directly after dinner, stay the night and spend tomorrow there loafing. I'd go fishing."

She Didn't Know

"By clearing out of town, Elizabeth won't see tomorrow's papers which undoubtedly will mention Bruton's escape, and needlessly upset her. You two girls could pass a nice restful day on the beach."

"You're a wonder!" Nancy exclaimed enthusiastically, rising to kiss him. She adored the little shack which they had got on the time payment plan. The hundred dollars down had been a wedding present from an aunt of his and the $20 a month payments were [illegible] from their household budget.

Weekends they spent there, immensely happy and busy in fixing up the model cabin.

As dear to them as the tiny apartment in San Francisco was Honeymoon Cottage on the Pacific.

Luana walked in. A smiling Luana full of apologies for having stayed late at the hospital. The Colonel was so much better that they had been playing a game of backgammon, she told them.

"We're going to drive down to the cottage at San Gregorio tonight," sang Nancy.

"It's a holiday at the bank tomorrow, and I'm just crazy to get in a good day's fishing," said Jasper.

They urged her to come with them. When she demurred, they insisted.

"Write a note now to the Colonel, telling him you'll be over at the hospital tomorrow evening round half past eight."

She did so.

They passed Salada Beach and Moss Beach and Granada and at the end of two hours driving were in San Gregorio and just beyond on a little cliff that ran to the rocky edge of the ocean lay the Paynes' picturesque log-cabin.

"It's perfectly adorable!" exclaimed Luana as Jasper unpadlocked the heavy front door, switched on a lamp and they went inside.

APPETITE rules weight. The underweight [illegible] appetite, and the overweights have [illegible]. In abnormal weight [illegible] has ceased to be a reliable guide as to the amount of food that should be eaten.

[illegible] many factors may [illegible] the appetite of the [illegible] lack of outdoor exercise [illegible] fatigue. The [illegible] underweight, as a rule, [illegible] and has difficulty in getting the sleep she needs [illegible] conditions unfavorable to appetite.

The [illegible] underweight [illegible] disinterested in food [illegible] since the digestive system is directly affected by fatigue this may be a protective reaction. However, this state of affairs must not be permitted to continue, for you will become thinner, more easily tired and have even less appetite.

Appetite Control

When you set about building [illegible] you must work [illegible] the factors that have diminished your appetite. Plan a definite amount of rational exercise in the fresh air to create a new chain of physical conditions, and establish better sleeping habits. You will be surprised at the close relation of [illegible] and appetite. Rational exercise and fresh air plus relaxation, which is almost important to the underweight.

An excellent plan for the fatigued underweight is rest before meals. Try to manage fifteen or twenty minutes of rest before eating. If possible, lie down, relax completely. Ultimately, by consistently taking more calories, you will increase your capacity for food. This increase in food consumption must be made by degrees, for a digestive upset which may result from a too-rapid increase in calories or too-rich food is a useless mistake in the weight gainer's program.

The dietary factors which will promote normal appetite are adequate vitamins, regularity of meal hours and improved general functioning. Vitamin B, which is contained in whole grains, encourages normal appetite, while the other vitamins help to raise the vitality. The underweight should work toward the steady increase in appetite which comes from a constant addition of calories in combination with a health regime.

For the overweights, a voracious appetite can be conquered by taking smaller meals and less liquid with the meals. Eventually, this will reduce the size of the stomach and the appetite. It takes about a month to get your appetite in hand, but amazing as it may seem the overweight can lessen an exorbitant craving for food. The fruit regime, which is the initial step in the reducer's program, is most effective in shrinking the stomach and giving at least a start toward appetite control.

Appetite is the promise to take care of food. The underweight must adopt the measures which improve appetite and the overweight must concentrate on appetite control.

Of invaluable service to the would-be reducer, the Fruit Regime, contained in the leaflet "Dodging the Calories," may be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope along with your request to Ida Jean Kain, Boston Evening American.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Reforming Drinking Man One of World's Most Difficult Jobs

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Leopards do not change their spots, zebras their stripes, nor drunkards their habits.

Most sorrowful of all wives and most deserving of pity are those of men who cannot resist the temptation to take a drink and to follow it with another and another.

Women have been known to reform men of this type, but not often. The job is one that calls for a complete overhauling of character, and the slightest mistake on the part of the wife is usually sufficient to ruin her work, even when success is in sight.

To just such a woman goes today's five-dollar award. She will use it to good advantage, I know. And next week we shall have more five-dollar prizes for other women whose husbands also drink.

Here is the interesting letter she writes:

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a woman who made the mistake of marrying a man who drinks. Every Sunday is a nightmare in our home. Usually about 2 a. m. my husband comes staggering up the walk. It would [illegible] enough if he were alone [illegible] never [illegible]. Always he [illegible] accompanied by some chance acquaintance from a saloon. My [illegible] care for the two of [illegible] and tolerate the abuse they heap upon me.

Miss Fairfax, I do not think such an atmosphere is fit for my [illegible]. They cannot help ob[illegible] and picking up some of the profanity that precedes every word my husband utters.

Divorce is out of the question. I love my husband. There is no [illegible] when he is sober. [illegible] anything I can do to [illegible] him?

MRS. A. J.

DEAR MRS. A. J.:

You should never quarrel with a man of this type. To do so is to drive him to the nearest saloon. Neither should you act as nurse to him and his friends when he is intoxicated.

Were he my husband I'd take a trip every Sunday. The children would go along with me, [illegible] best to forget [illegible] returned home found my husband sober I should advise him that I had had enough and warn him that continuation of his drinking would oblige me to leave him and seek separate support in court.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

[illegible] broken-hearted girl of [illegible] ago the 21-year-old [illegible] man with whom I have [illegible] company told me he [illegible] to love me. He [illegible] to remain my [illegible] would never marry [illegible].

Do you think our ages have [illegible] thing to do with his change? [illegible] still love him d[illegible].

[illegible] BROKEN-HEARTED.

DEAR YOUNG WOMAN:

A girl of 24 is far more mature than a boy of 20. You should realize that fact.

He [illegible] looking for play and fun [illegible] good times. You're looking for marriage, a home and children. You and he are miles [illegible].

[illegible] to you is get a grip on yourself. Tears won't help. You'd do better to seek a friend more your own age.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My wife and I are both 33 years of age. Married 16 years ago, we were a model couple until my recent discovery that she was having "an affair" with a man in her office.

Of course, she denied the charges when I told her what a trusted friend had revealed to me. And the more I accused her, the angrier she became.

Two weeks ago I resolved to trap her and the man who is coming between us. Every morning I went to the place where she works and remained in the locality all day. My plan failed, principally because I have aroused their suspicions, and, no doubt they knew I would spy on them.

But proof or no proof, I cannot go on living with a woman who is unfaithful. And I would get a divorce in a minute had I sufficient legal grounds.

Do you think it would be advisable for me to employ a detective and would you recommend a reliable one?

AN UNHAPPY MAN.

MY DEAR MAN:

Forget about the detective. Instead use your money for the services of a good physician. Tell him to examine your head. I'm sure there's plenty wrong with it.

Suspicion such as you reveal in your letter is a sign of insanity. You may not recognize it as such, but that is no indication you are healthy and normal. Nourish such fears and you'll be in the insane asylum within ten years.

Why you should put more confidence in your trusted friend than you do in the woman who married you and helps you to support a home is beyond me. Perhaps it is additional proof of your approaching madness.

And if you'd like a little more frank advice from this old lady, I'd like to add that any woman would be justified in running away from a man of your madness.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My girl and I became engaged recently. Some of her friends gave us a party and kissing games were played. I was disgusted when she let the other fellows kiss her. I walked out, took my hat and went home, permitting her to come as best she could with the kissers.

Don't you think I was right?

MICHAEL.

DEAR MICHAEL:

I do not. I think you were very wrong not to see that this girl arrived home safely. Kissing games are a question of taste and, played together by a company of young people, are probably not as dangerous as the two-by-two kind.

I suppose your girl didn't like to fly in the face of the company and say she wouldn't play kissing games because she was engaged.

I really think you should have been more tolerant. Lose no time in making up with her—if she will have you back again.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Good Manners in Public

RESTAURANT etiquette! Should you check the coats? Who follows first behind the head waiter, Bob or Lucy? Who goes first if there is no head waiter? Who orders dinner?

What a flustered feeling you can work up when dining in public, if you don't know the answers! Lucy follows the headwaiter, of course, and Bob would lead the way if there were no head waiter.

Bob checks his coat at the door, Lucy keeps hers. Either the waiter or Bob helps her off with her wrap and pulls out her chair.

Bob orders the dinner, after consulting his guest to find out her choice from the menu. She will not embarrass Bob by choosing either the cheapest or the most expensive dinner.

How comforting it is to feel sure of oneself on these important little trifles! Then it doesn't seem as though a spotlight were beating down upon your perspiring brow every time you appear in public.

It's amazing how even experienced people may be weak on some point of etiquette. Our 40-page booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR EVERY DAY, warns of slips and tells how to avoid them. Written for our every-day American life, not for the problems of grand dukes and duchesses. Entertaining, simple, helpful.

Send 15c for our booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR EVERY DAY, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

WHITE-CAPPED breakers thundering on the shore . . . stretches of white sand meeting the azure of the sky . . . tang of salt and spray and the bracing bite of a sea breeze . . .

Sun-time is here and the rites of sun-worshippers have already begun. Limbs are bared to the health-giving rays of the sun and body skin again meets the elements face to face.

Now is the time to decide whether you'll remain [illegible] white this summer. It's an important question [illegible] giving a lot of thought.

Burning your skin to a crisp while trying to acquire a [illegible] dusky tan which was [illegible] several summers ago [illegible] definitely out this season. It took women several years to learn that too much [illegible] to eat like [illegible] of the skin.

Parching the skin and acquiring tiny wrinkles in the face is too great a price to pay for any feminine fad however smart it may seem at the time.

Happily, cosmeticians have rushed to our aid after seeing what we were doing to ourselves in the summertime so that now we may bask for hours in the luxurious warmth of the sun without injuring the smooth loveliness of our skin.

There are two alternatives for outdoor fans this summer. Tan lightly and sensibly under the protection of a suntan lotion or tan not at all by applying anti-sunburn foundation.

With all the grand summer make-up available, you may have the sun-drenched healthy look of an outdoor gal without acquiring any actual tan at all.

A new cream which has been created as an anti-sunburn foundation is one of the best suntime essentials I've seen. It glides over your pores evenly and smoothly leaving a thin film which is invisible but which protects the skin from redness and blistering.

Menace of Silicosis

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

NOWADAYS we read in the newspapers a great deal about "silicosis."

A commission has recently been appointed to study this industrial hazard.

Silicosis, formerly called "miners' consumption," is not a modern disease. It has been known for centuries. In fact Hippocrates, father of modern medicine, spoke of this disease and accurately described it many centuries ago. But it was not until 1902 that the first commission was organized to investigate this problem. The royal commission appointed in England found that silicosis was common among rock drillers and other persons who inhaled dust.

LIKELY VICTIMS

Of course, the inhalation of dust is harmful. But when air that contains silica is inhaled the danger is even greater. Silicosis is due to breathing in the sharp, hard particles of sand, sandstone or quartz, all of which consist largely of silica, or contain it.

The disease is frequently encountered in miners, sand blasters, quarry men, tunnel builders and others engaged in similar occupations. Unfortunately, it is often overlooked in early stages. The sufferer complains of a chronic cough. At times it may be confused with bronchitis.

As time goes by the silica particles [illegible] damage the delicate tissues of the lungs. This prepares the way for the germs of tuberculosis and pneumonia, as well as other infections of the lungs.

Do not be misled by the belief that short or occasional exposure leads to silicosis.

Married Comrades

CHAPTER 16

MARY was so lovely in her rather childishly theatrical declaration that she would do whatever I advised, "no matter if it killed her," that I kissed her warmly before I answered her.

"It's very simple," I said. "I want you to be a little hypocrite for the space of a few seconds. Tell your father-in-law that you had an attack of anything your invention suggests and that you felt you must get up here to me."

"Tell him you're ready to come back to work wherever he thinks best, but that I am asking you to stay up here for a [illegible]."

U. S. WILL CURB JAPAN TEXTILE IMPORTS

Washington, May 22 (INS)—President Roosevelt [illegible] power of the Tariff [illegible] to curb imports of Japanese cotton textiles.

He issued a proclamation under which the tariffs on bleached, printed, dyed and [illegible] cotton cloth will be raised 42 per cent effective June 20.

Increased duties [illegible] 30 per cent of all cotton [illegible] imported from Japan in 1935.

The President acted on a recommendation of the U. S. Tariff Commission, which found an excess of American over Japanese production costs justified an increase from the 1930 rate [illegible] from 23 to 31 per cent ad valorem, to a range of 34 to 50 per cent.

NEW ENGLAND AFFECTED

The action [illegible] congressional [illegible] southern New England textile spokesmen [illegible] Japanese competition was driving the American industry to the wall.

Supporting charges that labor exploitation enabled the Japanese to undercut their American competitors, the commission found 85 per cent of the employes in the Japanese industry were girls ranging from 14 to 18 [illegible].

The commission's report stated these girls were [illegible] on contracts ranging from 1 to 3 [illegible] housed in dormitories under [illegible] management control, and paid wages ranging from [illegible] cents a day.

The commission's report said:

"Although the United States is the world's largest producer of cotton cloth, Japan in recent years has been the largest exporter.

"In recent years American export trade has fallen sharply, the declines being due in a larger part to the competition of cheaper fabrics from Japan."

Japanese imports to the United States were shown to have increased from 28,000,000 square yards in 1932 to 62,000,000 square yards in 1935.

Of 1935 imports, the commission found 38,000,000 square yards were bleached and that 20,000,000 were printed, dyed or colored, the balance being unbleached.

The President's order applies only to cloths containing yarns from No. 30 to 50. These cloths, however, constitute 58 per cent of all cotton cloth imported in 1935.

The rate increases do not affect unbleached cloth or weavings with jacquard, lappet or swivel attachments. American imports of such unbleached cloths in 1935 were only slightly over 3,000,000 square yards.

U. S. EXPORTS FALL

The commission's findings, set forth in a 249-page document and detailing an exhaustive analysis of the Japanese competition, were pursuant to a Senate resolution passed more than a year ago.

Of a total of 62,000,000 square yards of imports in 1935 the commission found Japan had supplied 36,400,000 square yards. Japanese imports in the first quarter of 1936 reached over 21,000,000 square yards.

Representative Rogers (R) of Massachusetts, who has led the fight for the protection of New England textile mills against low priced, cheap labor competition from Japan in the American markets, said:

"The President's move was a step in the right direction, and we are extremely grateful for it. However, it is only the beginning of the fight.

"The 42 to 50 per cent increase in tariff duties ought to help employment some in the New England mill districts, but we still may have to have further and drastic legislation to protect our mills against this destructive Japanese competition.

"The Tariff Commission has not yet reached a decision about cotton velvetine. Imports of that commodity have increased alarmingly in the last few months. While the Japanese product is inferior to ours, it is the lower price at which it sells that controls the market. I intend to take that up.

"Also we must watch our markets in the Philippines. Japan's failure to keep the 'gentlemen's agreement' to curtail exports to the United States and to the Philippines has not been lived up to. The Japanese have gotten around this by shipping cotton goods to China for reshipment outside the agreed Japanese quota."

Child Attacker Gets 9 to 12 Years

Lawrence, May 22—Louis J. Doucetta, 62, of Lynn, father of eight children, pleaded guilty in Superior Criminal Court here today to charges of attacking two [illegible] old Lynn school children.

He was sentenced to 9 to 12 years in the state prison. Doucette was arrested following a complaint made by the principal of the school the two girls attended. Police said he served a jail term in 19[illegible] for a similar offense.

New Guideall for Boston Motorists

(A splendid thing to paste on the windshield or in some other handy spot.)

What with a new traffic division in the Boston police department and 12 official taggers let loose under direction of Sergeant John P. McNealey, it would be a nice thing for an offending motorist to greet his tagger by name—even first name, if the motorist has the courage. This may help:

Patrolman Manuel Fraga covers Portland street and the vicinity of the North Station.

Francis Willard — Brattle street, Cornhill and vicinity.

Carlton Sproul — Bromfield and School streets.

Patrick Marlborough—Chaun

Patrick Marlborough — Chauncy, Bedford and Essex streets.

Bernard Kilduff — Beach, Lincoln and South streets.

Clarence Leavitt — Stuart, Harvard, Kneeland and Knapp streets.

Mortimer Cullipy—Kenmore square and vicinity.

John J. Deledge—Devonshire and Franklin streets.

Leo B. Barney—Washington, Stuart and West streets.

Carl Melanson—Park square, Boylston street, Scollay square.

And the man on the motorcycle with a bunch of tags in his hand is Patrolman Francis A. Keeley. He is liable to be anywhere on Massachusetts avenue, Newbury and Beacon streets and Commonwealth avenue.

CURLEY TO OPEN QUINCY SPAN

Accompanied by a military escort [illegible] of the executive council and [illegible] committees of [illegible] Curley [illegible] the State House [illegible] to open the new [illegible] Weymouth Fore River [illegible] Wey[illegible].

[illegible] will be met at the Neponset [illegible] by a detachment of [illegible]. They will escort the governor to the new bridge. Here the toilet will be assisted with [illegible] exercises.

The dedicatory oration will be delivered by the Governor after the badge has been formally turned over to the commonwealth.

NEW TRAFFIC DRIVE SET BY FALLON

Boston's streets must not be "outdoor garages," Acting Police Superintendent Edward W. Fallon told the 150 officers and men in the new traffic division today.

But said the acting superintendent, police must use good [illegible] in dispensing tags and dealing with traffic violations.

Organized efforts to keep downtown streets clear must take the form of a campaign and reasonable application of the law. There will be no [illegible] have followed by a letdown, Fallon warned.

Captain John T. O'Leary, chief of the new traffic division, his three lieutenants, 11 sergeants and 173 patrolmen were present at the first pep talk the acting superintendent has given to any large body in the department.

Acting Superintendent Fallon told his audience that he had [illegible] long enough in traffic to understand their problems. He stressed the fact that courtesy and pleasant treatment must be given minor offenders.

He laid special emphasis on cooperation with downtown stores in permitting parking for a reasonable period while a car owner is [illegible].

He said, however, that the law against parking near fire hydrants must be strictly enforced.

Sergeant John P. McNealy was placed in charge of 12 patrolmen who constitute the squad. They will cover downtown Boston, the South End and Back Bay.

Fifteen men under Sergeant Patrick J. O'Donnell will be on duty nights from 6 p. m. to midnight, it was announced.

Prosecutions will be centralized, not conducted through divisions. Patrolman John C. Mahoney was given that duty. Patrolman Richard McKee of Division 2 had been given [illegible] of this detail in the downtown area by Captain Benjamin W[illegible].

An innovation will be the return of mounted police to Washington and Tremont streets and Atlantic avenue. There will be [illegible] horsemen. Four motorcycle officers will also be on downtown traffic duty.

Stocking Divorce

Charges that he pulled off her stockings to keep her from leaving the house won a divorce in Middlesex Probate Court in the suit of Mrs. Beatrice V. Duffy of Marlboro against James F. Duffy of Framingham.

GRANDCHILDREN SUE FOR RICHES MARSH LEFT

In a [illegible] case, four [illegible] grandchildren of Edward L. Marsh, Boston wool importer, who was killed by an auto early last year, opened a fight against their grandmother in Salem Probate Court today for a share in the estate.

Marsh's will [illegible] to reduce [illegible] and as a result $140,000 is in the balance.

Mrs. Mary H. Marsh of Puritan avenue, Swampscott, the widow, contends the residue of $140,000 should go to her because her husband had so provided in an earlier will.

John Jackson Walsh, the attorney who drew up both wills, testified on his [illegible] today that Marsh [illegible] to make the same provision in the [illegible] will.

STENOGRAPHER'S ERROR

Walsh testified that his secretary made a mistake, leaving out the [illegible] clause.

The grandchildren are Muriel R. Marsh, Edward L. Marsh 2d, Priscilla A. Marsh and Wilbur A. Marsh [illegible] of Myrtle street, Stoneham, children of a deceased son of the importer.

They claim that the $140,000 residue after all bequests should be divided under provisions of the law governing the distribution of estates where there is no will, one-third to go to the widow and one-third to a son of the [illegible].

As the wills [illegible] to incompleted [illegible] in the [illegible] Probate Court last May, their attorney, Edward M. Rowe of Boston, argued before Judge Harry R. Dow that the residuary clause cannot now be written into it.

NO PROVISION FOR THEM

Marsh left his business to his wife, his son Harold H. Marsh of Elm street, North Wilbraham and George W. Anderson, a veteran employe.

Besides the business he left personal [illegible] and he bequeathed his wife $[illegible] of this. When an inventory was made of the personal estate it was found to amount to $125,000. No provision was made in the will for the children of his deceased son, Wilbur.

Carinthia Due Sunday

The Cunard White Star Liner Carinthia, enroute from Liverpool, Belfast and Glasgow, will dock at Pier 3, East Boston, with 85 passengers for Boston, according to [illegible] advices [illegible].

LEOPOLD FAST GOLFER

King on Tour of British Links

Sandwich, Eng., May 22 (AP)—The mysterious visit of King Leopold III of the Belgians to England resolved today into a series of fast rounds of golf.

Most inhabitants of this town had never noticed the sole object of the [illegible] whose arrival set diplomatic circles abuzz with rumors was to crowd in as much golf as [illegible].

Local residents began to admire the [illegible] for one of the swiftest [illegible] golfers they have ever seen.

On Wednesday Leopold put in the [illegible] afternoon on St. George's links, covering 18 holes in near record time.

He was out early again yesterday on the Prince's course, where he passed the whole morning with a fast foursome.

The King's party numbered seven: Leopold himself, his three partners, two caddies and a detective, while another detective walked at a distance to keep away spectators.

After lunch Leopold and his party motored to Deal. There the King played a round with another foursome just as fast as his previous companions.

Rushing to Patient, Doctor in Crash

On his way to Quincy hospital today to see a patient, Dr. Walter M. O'Brien of [illegible] H[illegible] was [illegible] in a [illegible] and was himself taken to the hospital for a [illegible] for treatment.

Dr. O'Brien's car collided with a [illegible] driven by [illegible] Louis A. [illegible] of [illegible] Quincy.

The [illegible] was knocked onto the [illegible] at the intersection of [illegible] street and Munroe road.

Dr. O'Brien was bruised about the left [illegible] and [illegible] Gropp was cut on the face.

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

In this business of running around the state mostly by motor, to visit the state teachers' colleges, about which I wrote yesterday, I cannot deny that I am being pretty considerably impressed by the new trunk motor highways which have been put into commission during the last few years.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

To those of my readers who are natural travelers, who are always going places and doing things, I suppose that these have been a nine-day wonder and have then settled down to being quite ordinary phenomena, no longer to be deemed unusual or even extraordinary.

But there are some roads I have been traveling over that I have not laid eyes on for five or even ten years. During the winter I travel mostly by train. The railroads are right when they call it safer traveling. In particular, I have a horror of buses on wintry roads, which is probably unfounded on any basis of real accident statistics.

One Trip a Summer Enough for Family

In summer, the period when a vast proportion of our population is on the road just as many hours as it can keep on the road, I am considerable of a stay-at-home. If we (the family) manage to make one trip of a few hundred miles during the entire summer we are doing well. The motto of the Rogers family is "J'y suis, je reste"—which means, in the words of the old song, "we never care to wander from our own fireside."

Consequently we are considerably impressed when we plan to take a road which we remember as uncomfortable, slow and winding, a two-car crown road, washboard at that, and find, instead, a magnificent four-car lane running in each direction, with overpasses and underpasses, and semi-circular entrances and exits going off the main road in what seems exactly the wrong direction, the huge, elaborate circles for rotary traffic, and the like.

Most interesting it is to face the old weary problem of going through difficult and crowded cities and find that all the traffic has been skillfully evaded by a new roundabout way and one never sees the city at all, except from a distance.

Very interesting—and occasionally quite inconvenient, especially when you have a yen to buy something in a city and suddenly discover there "ain't no city" to buy it in.

Quiet of Neglected By-Ways Refreshing

Certainly these through routes are magnificent in their straightness, comfort, convenience and safety, and I suppose are worth all they cost in speed and security. But when they run through the barren wastes in the central part of the state, how lonely and deserted and ineffably dreary and uninteresting they are. One dreads this mile after mile of unkempt undergrowth with hardly a house in sight, no signs of life, let alone of civilization.

How charming and refreshing in comparison is that occasional old road which has been completely deserted by the broad and fast new highway and left to live in peace and quiet, much as it was in the days of the horse and buggy. The temporary structures that were built when it was a main highway have been left to oblivesence and ruin—the fried clam parlors, the hot dog stands, the roadside markets—these have followed the traffic. And nought is left but the old shabby houses with their modestly blooming gardens, an occasional barn and farmstead, and folks going about their business. There are no raucous signs to shriek continually at the wearied eye, and you have to go miles before you strike a gas station or a bottle of pop.

Presently, I suppose, there will be express highways running from everywhere to everywhere and travel for speed's sake will be exhilarating. But I hope that I shall always have time enough to hunt out the old, narrow winding roads that have passed through their phase of modernization and been forgotten to slumber away their days far away from the rush of through traffic and the endless and blatant commercialization that inevitably springs up in its path.

All the same, if you are in a hurry, there have been wonderful developments in these latter days.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Marjorie McBride

Forty cents and an ideal seem hardly enough for the founding of one of the greatest hospitals in the country. Yet that was the original capital of the founders of the Massachusetts Women's Hospital on Parker Hill avenue in Roxbury.

MARJORIE McBRIDE

The Woman's Charity Club, which owns and maintains the institution, is celebrating its 48th anniversary

Only Boston could produce such a dramatic romance of philanthropy so quietly. It was in 1888 that some public spirited women of the town got together, called themselves the Woman's Charity Club, and started out to help the then flourishing Home for Intemperate Women. Astonishingly, the supply of intemperate women dwindled. The home's population diminished. The good ladies found themselves without a cause

Not for long. Changing their objective, they observed that women of modest means, in need of surgical treatment, didn't get much attention in Boston. In 1889, with exactly 40 copper pennies in their treasury, they decided to start a hospital of the type they wanted, and took over an old house in Chester street.

• • •

Dr. Cushing Aided in Free Hospital

Dr. E. W. Cushing, celebrated in his day, helped the women to start the enterprise. Some of them actually put mortgages on their homes in order to contribute. The place in Chester street was the first free-bed hospital for women in Boston.

With true Yankee initiative, the women rolled their 40-cent capital into thousands for charity by elaborate balls and banquets, and pretty much introduced the "benefit" to New England.

In 1891, they broke ground for the group of buildings on Parker Hill avenue, which started as the Woman's Charity Club Hospital, but now is known as the Women's Hospital. In 1927, they added a wing which cost a quarter of a million dollars, speaking pretty well for 40 cents, plus enthusiasm

Real old-timers in the newspaper business in Boston remember Charles P. Bond of Mount Vernon, N. Y., as an ace reporter on the old Boston Journal and the Boston Traveler.

A few days ago he represented the class of 1873, Springfield Classical high school, at a reunion. After his item-hunting days were over, Bond turned to politics and became mayor of Waltham.

Gas Station Attendant Discovers New Star

What does a garage attendant think about besides gallonage? He thinks about stars.

Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard Observatory, has just confirmed the claim of Leslie Peltier, a gas-oil-and-water man at a garage in Delphos, O., that he has discovered a new comet, and one of the ninth magnitude. Leslie has a small telescope, and was the first human to detect this astral body moving slowly through the heavens near the Pole.

Shapley's men photographed the thing shortly before daybreak the other dawn. The comet, which should properly be named "Fill-it-up," is the fifth to be discovered by Mr. Peltier.

He's still looking for a motorist who knows how to get to the next town.

Wonder what certain sedate citizens of a certain part of Dorchester would say if they knew a refined lady of the neighborhood is keeping a young leopard in the house! AUSTEN LAKE

Wes's Wobbles Rock Red Sox Pennant Boat

Austen Lake

READERS WITH A MORBID INTEREST in human misery are invited to consider the case of Wesley Cheek Ferrell, the Red Sox ghost-ball flinger whose skill has mysteriously oozed out of his pitching elbow somewhere between last year's hay and this Spring's grass. His is a tragic problem of curdled, cosmic-chemistry without any outward clue as to why, in seven months' time, he has slumped from Prince-royal of his profession to a raggity pauper whose best efforts are being riddled by the rabble.

It is a curious collapse because Ferrell has no kink in his anatomy, no aches in his innards, no family gripes or poisonous huffs with the employers. He is sound of wind and limb, sane in the head and eaten by the wish to win.

No major league pitcher in the business is such a furnace of internal yearning as Ferrell, so that he frequently sits in the clubhouse-gloaming after failure, chewing the membrane from his lips and biting holes in his wrists from the fever of his frustration. I have seen him, even after meaningless exhibition games in the South, simmering away in his underwear long after his mates have sponged, dressed and departed, mumbling swears at himself and nibbling his knuckles.

And though no pitcher loves to lose, most of them learn to pucker a fair puss at disaster and sleep the night away without stifling their sobs with pillow stuffings. But defeat to Ferrell is a Sarah Bernhardt tragedy in which he goes off to hide, sometimes refusing to feed himself and suffering the screaming meemies in solitude.

* * *

CURE MAY BE ROUND THE CORNER

ON TOP OF THIS WESLEY SUMS up to pretty fair figures as a man, denying himself the pleasure of stimulants and having no stay-out habits. Nor does he permit any lard to grow next to his skin from indolent winter loafing, spending his spare time hoofing through the woodlands of his Carolina country with a shotgun in the curl of one arm. Or he goes traipsing after the little white golf ball with his whippy mallets. So there are no external reasons for his not being as good in his specialty as he was last year, when he led the league.

In cases of this kind the pill-and-scalpel men usually start stripping out the victim's spare giblets, on the theory that though teeth, tonsils and adenoids are divine endowments, they are often poisonous impediments. But, after making Wes transparent with their X-rays and rummaging around his cavities, the doctors find him physically fit.

Still something's out of plumb, if only in his imagination. Because rival hitters like Mickey Cochrane and Rogers Hornsby tell me, where Wes's pitches came up last year as phantom teasers always off the fat of the bat, they now float up like the seat of a fat man's britches, large, lazy and inviting to the wallop. And though he has enjoyed some successes, once pitching a 2-hit game against the Tigers, the hitters usefully curl their toes and stroke his pitching like your little sister Minnie petting the puppy.

I do not pretend to know the answer to this one, because anybody who could cure such tidal fluctuations in the human makeup, could make himself famous as a wizard in cosmic cures. I only know that Ferrell has what ails him and, unless cured, it may cost a pennant.

ROCKINGHAM'S ORPHANED SURPLUS

AMONG THE ODDITIES OF EACH race meeting at New England horse and dog tracks are the sums of orphaned money left unclaimed by bettors. Rockingham reveals that $7,956.70 is still waiting for absentee owners, money that will eventually go to the State. Narragansett, Suffolk Downs and the greyhound saucers, show similar surpluses.*

Mort Mahoney, Rockingham's veteran pari-mutuel expert, tells me that most of the unclaimed coin represents winning tickets torn, discarded or lost in the flurry of the moment. But even victims of excitement may demand their winnings by mailing notary-sworn affidavits of the day, race and amount wagered which, if honestly stated, often checks with the track's record of unpaid tickets. Due to the irritation and labor of investigating such claims the tracks do not invite owners of lost coupons to file claims. But they trace those that straggle in and often make payments

HARBINGER OF FAILURE

ONE OF THE TELLTALE SIGNS of Max Schmeling's despair comes from the training camp report that he is copying Jack Dempsey's old ring crouch and imitating Jack's bobbing, weaving style. Max hopes to make himself a more elusive target for Joe Louis' fistic anaesthesia on the night of June 18.

This is significant for two reasons. First, a confident, competent fighter never needs to alter his habitual fighting posture. Second, a natural, athletic style, such as stance, is established in the formative days of early youth, when habits are still green and a lad is fumbling for his natural, comfortable style. And though many men, after these habits have jelled, try to correct their failures by reforming old habit, they always revert under pressure to original attitudes whether it be a batting stance at the plate or a fighter's posture in the ring.

Max Baer tried to imitate Dempsey's crouch in his mountain retreat before facing Louis, bending at the middle and making jack-in-the-box motions with his head. But always when the milling grew hot he straightened up and fought his old style. The first round with Louis was less than 30 seconds old when he forgot his careful planning and looked like a frightened pig-tail girl being pestered by the town bully.

72 Golfers Match Skill in State Title Play

By Bill Grimes

Pitted against practically the identical field which failed to stop her for the past two years, Miss Rosamond Vahey, representing the Vesper Country Club, is defending her Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts championship today at the Salem Country Club.

Miss Vahey, three-time winner of the state title, is the ranking favorite.

There are 72 members of the W. G. A. playing today in the 18-hole qualifying round. The low 32 will make the grade and match play will get underway on Monday.

As usual Miss Vahey did not register any too successfully during the spring district team match championships. She was twice beaten by Mrs. Henri F. Prunaret, Jr., and also set back by Mrs. Dorothy Hunter Whittemore and Miss Priscilla Dennett but it is doubtful if any one of her conquerors will or can take her into camp in a state championship.

Game at Peak

At the start of the 1935 championship at Brae Burn, Miss Vahey was playing only mediocre golf. She used up [illegible] strokes to get around in the qualifications but after two rounds of match play, during which she eliminated Miss Mary Slattery and Mrs. Sidney Rogal, Miss Vahey was at the peak of her game.

In the quarter finals, Miss Vahey was taken to the home green by Miss Ruth Batchelder and that match put the champion on edge to successfully defend her title. She defeated Mrs. Whittemore 4 and 3 in the semifinals and then stopped Miss Deborah Verry 3 and 2 to win the crown for the third time.

Although there are seven former titleholders playing in the qualifying round today, none of them are serious contenders to regain their lost laurels.

Miss Priscilla Dennett, The Country Club, is one of the outstanding threats confronting Miss Vahey. Miss Dennett has been playing competitive golf for only three seasons but she has been developed rapidly and doubtless will cause trouble before bowing out—if she does—of this championship.

Mrs. Dorothy Hunter Whittemore and Mrs. Henri Prunaret, Jr., of Brae, Burn and Charles River, respectively, are capable of offering a brand of golf which will put the titleholder to the test. On two occasions Mrs. Whittemore has been a semifinalist, while a few years back, Mrs. Prunaret went through to the finals.

Lengthens Drives

During the district team match championship, Mrs. Whittemore excelled as far as low rounds were concerned. During the past year, Mrs. Whittemore has lengthened out her drives and long fair ways shots. She has been the master of approach shots for years and is a deadly putter.

The Salem Country Club is ideal for Mrs. Whittemore's game and it was on that course that she went through to the semifinals in her initial state championship.

Along with her sound game, Mrs. Prunaret is one of the best competitors in the W. G. A. She has been threatening to break through in state championship for some years and this may be her year.

The Salem Country Club is in wonderful condition for the championship and as soon as the field if reduced to the 32 qualifiers, there should be some low scores posted.

DODGERS Meet Bees IN 5 GAMES

Brooklyn, May 22. During the next four days the Bees and Dodgers should become well acquainted, for they are scheduled to play five games at Ebbetts Field.

Bill McKechnie's swarm and the Daffiness Boys of Flatbush are listed to engage in a single game this afternoon, but tomorrow they will play the first doubleheader of the season, a playoff of the 6-6 tie which was called in the 12th inning during the Bees' first visit.

The Dodgers haven't been doing so well by old Casey Stengel of late. They have been alternating with the Phillies as occupants of last place, but at present are a full game out of the cellar.

Manager Stengel is figuring on his Daffiness Boys taking enough games from the Bees to move up a peg, but his charges will be obliged to display a better brand of baseball than they have shown of late to carry out such a plan.

The Bees pulled into New York last night after a fortnight at home, during which they won six, lost five and tied one. They are practically deadlocked with the Cincinnati Reds for fifth place and a game out of the first division.

Ed Brandt, the ex-Brave, will have another crack at his old times mates this afternoon. Brandt pinned the Bees' ears back in Boston two weeks ago and believes that he'll duplicate that feat this afternoon.

Manager Bill McKechnie stated that he'd start Ben Cantwell today. Cantwell has been troubled with a lame arm for some time and has been performing as a relief pitcher. His ailment has disappeared and he'll have his first chance to start in some weeks.

On their first trip here, the Bees broke even with the Dodgers. Manager McKechnie declared this morning that if he gets the pitching he received yesterday from John "Tobacco" Lanning, the Cubs and the Reds had better do a complete job on the Pirates and Cards during the next three days or they'll awake some fine morning to discover the Bees are in the first division.

Lanning, a rookie secured from Knoxville, limited the Reds to four hits yesterday in Boston.

Jubilant Red Sox Speed Home for Nats' Opener

By Joe Cashman

En Route to Boston, May 22—Having nothing else to do this idle day, let's explode a popular baseball theory.

We mean that idea about one game being no more or less important than another. It's strictly the bunk, believe you us.

Our Red Sox undoubtedly will score many thrilling victories over leading flag rivals before this race is done, but none that can possibly have a more salutory effect than the decision gained over the last-place Browns a day back.

Those brief two hours at Sportsman's Park just settled whether we would spend this 28-hour homeward trek in Paradise or Purgatory.

It happened that Wesley Ferrell redeemed himself with a vengeance, Jimmy Foxx hit his longest home-run of the year and our heroes not only gained their seventh win in 13 starts on the jaunt but also went into a virtual tie for first place.

So this longest of big league jumps is a joy ride. Smiling, singing and whistling, the Cronin men roll merrily toward their own back yard, where they open against the Senators tomorrow.

Incidentally, there was plenty of shuddering done during the final day in the mound city.

John "Sleepy Boy" Welch went into a noon shudder on hearing the sad news that he was being sent to the San Diego club of the Pacific Coast League under option.

But that didn't compare with the shudders that shook the Sox bench at the ball park when, first, "Dusty" Cooke crashed his noggin against the left field wall and a little later, "Doc" Cramer turned his ankle sliding into third.

Both fly chasers, however, were able to finish the game after first aid treatment from "Doc" Logan.

Ferrell hurled at his own request. He had been knocked out of the box the day before, when he suffered his third defeat in as many starts on the trip.

Everybody was becoming alarmed over his repeated failures except himself. He merely became angry.

Wes turned in a seven-hit performance to gain his fifth victory. He was invincible in the early frames and in just enough trouble towards the finish to show he had all the stuff and cunning that made him the outstanding pitcher in the loop last year.

Deal Puts Cubs on Flag Trail

Due to the failure of Lonnie Warneke to come up to his 1935 form, the Chicago Cubs negotiated a trade with the Philadelphia club, which should just about win them the pennant.

For weeks the Cubs have been angling for Curt Davis. Two weeks ago P. K. Wrigley offered President Nugent of the Phillies $70,000 and Fabian Kowalik for Davis. Realizing that Davis was the only player on his roster with any worthwhile box office appeal, Nugent turned down the offer and explained why he had rejected it.

Owner Wrigley countered with an offer to include Chuck Klein in the deal, providing the Phillies were willing to part with a right hand hitting outfielder.

Yesterday the Cubs sent Klein and Kowalik to the Phillies, accompanied by $40,000, and in return received Curt Davis and Ethan Allen.

Mike Haslin, the utility infielder with the Bees, predicted that Davis would win 20 or more games for the Cubs. In Mike's opinion, Davis is "tops" among the right handers when he wants to bear down. Davis has an opportunity to receive some heavy sugar from the Cubs and according to Haslin he'll be tough to beat from here in.

Now that he is back in Phillies, Chuck Klein has better than an even chance of leading the National League in home runs. Chuck has that right field wall gauged perfectly and he'll waste no time dropping circuit drives out into Broad street.

Secretary John Quinn of the Bees has been receiving so many requests for box seats for the All Star game, to be played at the National League Field on July 7, that the supply is already exhausted.

For the All Star game, all grand stand seats will be reserved and regular prices will prevail.

Quinn wishes that the fans would apply for reserved seats instead of boxes or many of them are doomed to be disappointed for the entire reserved section will be sold out, weeks before the All Star game.

President Bob Quinn announced yesterday that, after a conference with Business Manager Eddie Collins of the Red Sox, Ralph R. Clifford, a former sports writer and baseball authority, had been appointed publicity director for the All-Star game. Clifford will also tabulate the votes for the All Star teams sent in by the fans.

H. C. VICTORY LOOMS IN COLLEGE TRACK

Mr. Boston

Green Is Real Star

—By Jack Conway—

I NOTE with more than passing interest that expert track opinion is centered very much on Milt Green of Harvard who will try to score a triple victory in the Yale meet at the Stadium tomorrow.

Mr. Boston

Green has been my idea of a great athlete from the first time I saw him in competition in an open track meet at the Garden. There was a special prize for the outstanding athlete of the meet and I cast my vote for Green.

I told George Carens that the Harvard youngster was one of the finest hurdlers I had ever seen in action. I was alone in voting for Milt but he has come on to prove I was right.

In addition to being a great hurdler Green is also a sprinter and broad jumper.

Harvard-Yale track meets are always colorful affairs, and I am sure that with Milt Green seeking new laurels the contests at the Stadium tomorrow will be replete with thrills and probably furnish a few new records.

OUTDOOR track meets will attract more than usual interest in view of the fact this is an Olympic year. The intercollegiates in Philadelphia a week from Saturday will also be Olympic finals for college stars.

College athletes will make stout hearted efforts to gain places on the American team. They possess youth and fire and should surpass the best efforts of some of the older track and field stars who are now representing clubs.

In addition to the Harvard-Yale track meet tomorrow there will also be the New England Intercollegiates at Providence.

* * *

BRUBAKER

PHIL Brubaker, Coast heavyweight, will toss leather at Andre Lenglet of France in a ten-round bout in San Francisco. If all goes well with Brubaker he will accept terms for a ten-round bout with Jack Sharkey which will be staged at Fenway Park on June 15 by the Goodwin A. C.

Brubaker, 21 years old and a terrific puncher, has been winning all of his bouts on the Coast. It is expected that his aggressiveness and sock will enable him to add Lenglet to his list of victims.

Meanwhile Sharkey has started light training so that he will be ready to get down to the hard training grind once the Brubaker match is closed.

* * *

ROCKINGHAM

DAVE Heisman, Mort Mahony's "Right Eye," called up to say he is from Rockingham Park which opens on Monday. Heisman has been in Maryland and Florida since he left New England last Fall.

Dave was much impressed by the new clubhouse setup at Rockingham. He says the additional boxes will cause the Salem, N. H. racing strip to have a greater appeal.

Most of the great racing stables of the country are represented at Rockingham. This is due to the fact the new Rockingham management has strong outside business contacts with the Whitneys and the Vanderbilts. When a track is able to get the star horses of these two stables it is not difficult to line up the other crack stables.

Heisman told me that Mort Mahony and himself will be satisfied if Rockingham has an average daily mutuel handle of $200,000. He asserts such a figure would mean a profitable meeting.

After Rockingham gets underway and Mort Mahony takes personal charge, Heisman will move to Agawam to direct the mutuel department there. Agawam is hopeful of opening its race meeting on May 26.

The overhead at Rockingham Park isn't as great as that at Suffolk Downs or Narragansett Park and as a result the new management is likely to get off to a winning start. The attendance figures and mutuel handle at Narragansett Park have been running ahead of a year ago and it is expected that Rockingham will also experience a pickup.

Racing interest continues to grow in all parts of the country. In New England people know more about the thoroughbreds than they did when racing first came here. Perhaps they still find it as difficult to pick winners but they are able to derive greater enjoyment out of the sport of kings on account of this new knowledge of horse flesh.

* * *

DOG RACING

RUSS MURRAY also looks for a large season for the dog tracks. Dog racing will get underway at Revere on June 2. The Revere track had a handle of $200,000 on its biggest night last season and will strive for a new top during 1936.

TITLE Meet at BROWN

R. I. STATE THREATENS

By Walter Kiley

Providence, R. I., May 22—Bullish sentiment continued to push Holy Cross stock to a new high level just previous to the launching of the trials of the 50th annual New England intercollegiates at Brown Field today.

Despite strong support for Rhode Island State's title hopes when sickness caused withdrawal of Anton Kishon and his Bates College teammates, Purple backers were confident that Holy Cross would return to Worcester tomorrow with their first New England title safely tucked away.

Only a sharp reversal of form on the part of its outstanding performance can beat the Bart Sullivan coached clan.

Rhode Island State, Holy Cross, Maine and Brown all stand to profit by Kishon's unfortunate illness.

Rowe Favored

With Kishon out, Fred Tootell's State hammer throwers will probably pick up three of the four places and a fine start of nine or ten points. His Bill Rowe will be favored to win the discus. But Holy Cross' Bill [illegible] will likewise move up along the field line and thereby the Cross will add points of its own.

Whereas Holy Cross is strongest in the running events, particularly in the short distance races, Rhode Island State gains its prestige from the field events, although both have point getters scattered liberally throughout the events.

Many figure Brown prominently. But past performances would indicate that the Bruins lack the all around strength to challenge the favorites.

Other teams entered are Boston College, Boston University, Bowdoin, Colby, M. I. T., Maine, Mass. State, New Hampshire, Northeastern (defending champions), Springfield, Tufts, Wesleyan, and W. P. I.

Records Seen

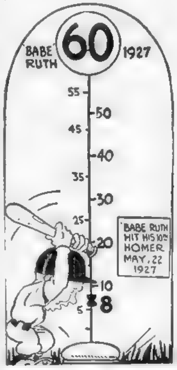
Records would seem to be endangered in the hammer, broad jump and 2 mile with possible new marks in the 220-yard hurdles and pole vault.

Survey of the fields would make it probable that Bowdoin would pick up two firsts thanks to the flying feet of Phil Good in the hurdles.

Larry Scanlon of Holy Cross seeks both sprint titles, 100 and 220 yards and should win on form. His opposition will come mostly from his teammate Walter Janiak and Al Hicks and Bouvar of Boston University.

Most experts figure Gil of Boston College to beat out Bates of Holy Cross in the 440, one of the most anticipated events on the program. The pair fought it out in the Boston College-Holy Cross dual meet at University Heights recently, Gil being declared the winner, Bates disqualified when the latter crossed in front of the Eagle at the finish line forcing a nasty fall.

BASHING JIMMY GOES AHEAD OF BABE



BY CLOUTING his tenth homer of the season yesterday, Jimmy Foxx went one day ahead of Babe Ruth's record, the year that the Bam hit 60 four-ply clouts for an all time mark.

Kay Winthrop In Net Final

Battling for her fourth straight women's state tennis singles title, Miss Katherine Winthrop today faced Mrs. Maynard M. Johnson, Jr., at The Country Club, Brookline. Finals in the doubles and mixed doubles are also scheduled.

Miss Winthrop won her semi-final match from Mrs. Reginald Southwick of Brookline with scores of 6-2, 6-1.

Mrs. Johnson found unexpected opposition in her match with Mrs. E. B. Corbiere of Southboro. She finally pulled out to win after more than two hours of fast play. The scores were 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

HELEN JACOBS SET FOR CUP MATCH

London, May 22—Fear that Helen Jacobs might not be able to play in the forthcoming Wightman Cup matches were allayed today when the American star arrived from Vienna.

"I am perfectly all right now," she said, "In fact I am going to play at Wimbledon right away."

Tufts Loses

Kingston, R. I., May 22—Tufts College baseball team journeyed down here from Medford only to receive a 6 to 2 pasting from the Rhode Island state bat wielders.

Why this DIFFERENCE?

This tobacco leaf gives a cigar the harsh, bitter, bitey taste you men have complained about for years. It's the cause of millions of cigars being thrown away half smoked.

This same tobacco leaf can give a cigar that taste you really enjoy . . . mild, mellow and full of real tobacco flavor. No harshness or bitterness—and no biting the tongue.

The same tobacco leaf . . . but entirely different results in a cigar. Why?

The answer is as simple as A-B-C. All cigar tobacco—even the finest—contains certain bitter oils and harsh elements. If left in, you get a harsh, bitter cigar that bites your tongue. If taken out, you get a smooth, mellow cigar that's a pleasure to smoke.

Ordinary curing methods don't — and can't—take out these harsh, bitter elements from the tobacco. Other methods actually damage—or destroy—the pure tobacco flavor.

THE SECRET OF PHILLIES

Bayuk invented a process that removes these harsh, bitter elements—and also brings out the real flavor of the tobacco.

This process—covered by patent protection—is what gives PHILLIES that mild, smooth, real tobacco taste from end to end. It's the reason more men smoke PHILLIES than any other cigar in America.

PROVE THIS YOURSELF

We urge you to try PHILLIES. You'll find no harshness—no bitterness—no bitey last half . . . nothing but smooth, rich tobacco flavor all through. What other cigar can stand this real smoking test?

Don't judge any cigar on claims. Judge it on how it pleases your taste.

BAYUK'S EXCLUSIVE PROCESS

This picture shows an important unit in the exclusive Bayuk Process for extracting the bitter oils and other harsh elements from the fine tobaccos used in PHILLIES. This Process enables you to enjoy the full flavor of fine tobacco without any bitter, bitey, harsh taste. Bayuk invites you to visit the factory and see this process in operation.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

My two selections won yesterday, and the bankroll continued its upward trend. FORTUITY won the first at Narragansett while RHODESIA placed. That is how I played them. The bankroll is now $438.65 after forty-four days of the experiment.

These are getaway days at Narragansett judging from the way the gee-gees are running. Just think what a $2 bet on MINE BOY would have done for the 'ol bankroll. The bangtail returned $353.60 for a deuce.

ANN MARSTERS' BETS

$5 Win Robins Cove, Narragansett 1st.

$5 Win New Deal, Narragansett 5th. (Scratched)

BANKROLL IS NOW $438.65. DAY'S PLAY $5.

This afternoon, I'm betting $5 to win on ROBINS COVE in the first at Narragansett and I intended to do the same on NEW DEAL, but he is scratched.

(At the suggestion of Walter O'Hara, Miss Marsters has set out to determine that conservative bets can result in satisfactory profits, or at worst small losses. Walter O'Hara, Narragansett Park owner, provided the capital with a $1000 gift. Half was turned over to the Boston Evening American Christmas Fund immediately. The remainder will be similarly handled at the end of the experiment. This is the forty-fourth day.)

Milky Way Entry Standout | Uppercut At 'Gansett

By BERT E. COLLYER

Copyright, 1936, by Collyer's News Bureau

Derby Day—The Aurora Derby, for which the Cattarinich-Eddy Confederacy hangs up $12,000 in added money, loses much of its publicized glamour by the fact that a very ordinary field is named as potential starters.

Of these the MILKY WAY ENTRY of SANGREAL and THE FIGHTER so far overshadow the balance that it is freely predicted they will "run one-two." True, RUSHAWAY and DNIEPER are also carded but rate only top-notch platers. Incidentally, the running of today's card marks the close of this meeting, which also may seem the "swan song." Ye'wekkum.

At 'Gansett

Over at Narragansett Park, the lads drag another sweet patootie out of the old vat. None other than UPPERCUT, which goes in the third canto. That last effort—a bang-up second—was even better than cold dope might indicate. Personally, I look upon this hide as a real good thing.

Tight fit between LOLOMA and JIM JOHN for what is left. Oh yes, people quite "influential" in racing circles are reported as being down [illegible] and [illegible] on SOCIETY COLUMN in the second. On what has gone before it would seem a case of Katy Bar the door. She has drawn an inside post position and only needs a "break" to tip toe. IDLE ALONG and RED ROAMER [illegible] Let your [illegible] be [illegible]

RED ROAMER WILSON'S BEST

SCREEN Rates Chance IN 4TH

IDLE ALONG RED HOT

By Dave Wilson

Best Bet—Red Roamer, 8th race

Narragansett Park, May 23—The Araho Stable scratched their star handicapper, New Deal, this morning, so I must stand by Red Roamer in the final race of this afternoon's card.

With two good sprint efforts to his credit, in one of which he was a winner over Zulu Lad, Red Roamer is coming up extra sharp for this effort at the mile and one-eight distance. He is also dropping slightly in class. He will again have Elston in the saddle.

FIRST RACE
Robin's Cove, High Haste, Capt. Yarbrough

ROBINS COVE, third [illegible] Proud Ripple and Prince [illegible] Havre de Grace, looms best [illegible] $1200 top and $1400 bottom [illegible] for maiden juveniles. HIGH HASTE pitted too ambitiously [illegible] strictly the danger. CAPT. YARBROUGH figures well [illegible] recent races.

SECOND RACE
Society Column, Artful Prince, Playful Boston.

SOCIETY COLUMN, on general form, shapes up vastly superior to this indifferent lot of $1200 top and $1000 maidens. ARTHUR PRINCE, a well-bred trick, flashed good early speed in better company at Jamaica. PLAYFUL BOSTON merits the next best rating on the strength of a recent good third to Hats Off.

THIRD RACE
Uppercut, Loloma, Jim John

UPPERCUT [illegible] needs only to duplicate that most recent endeavor [illegible] this cheap lot under the imaginary wire. LOLOMA, the main danger, finished third to Forced [illegible] on opening day.

FOURTH RACE
Screen, Merovech, Curling

Going to give SCREEN [illegible] chance. This plater [illegible] repeated early [illegible] ran a winning race [illegible] Septre and other [illegible] ers last trip. MEROVECH [illegible] to General A, looms all over the main danger. CURLING is a [illegible] sibility on Maryland [illegible]

FIFTH RACE
New Deal, Deduce, Bubblesome.

NEW DEAL must shoulder the weight of 120 pounds but, [illegible] of recent good accomplishments that burden shouldn't prove troublesome. A duplicate of [illegible] recent third to Lady Higloss should insure brackets for the Araho [illegible] Contention, if any, will [illegible] furnished by DEDUCE. [illegible] finished second to Vote B[illegible] trip, but picks up seven [illegible] pounds in this affair.

SIXTH RACE
Idle Along, St. Moritz, Capt. Jerry

IDLE ALONG just missed [illegible] ming Crowned Head in a [illegible] run mile and one-sixteenth only a few days back. ST. MORITZ, a rapidly improving sort, should offer the contention with CAPT. JERRY snaring the short award.

SEVENTH RACE
Hoosier's Pride, Bocasette, Queen Helen.

HOOSIER'S PRIDE isn't much horse in my book but recent form entitles him to a standout rating in a cheap affair of this sort. BOCASETTE [illegible] from the Miss A. Doris stables and [illegible] coming up a dead fit [illegible] recent morning trials are any criterion.

EIGHTH RACE
Red Roamer, Dormido, Pay Rack

RED ROAMER'S recent [illegible] endeavors should have served to put him on edge for a winning performance in an affair of this [illegible] DORMIDO failed to [illegible] his usual good race last trip. Figures close up on previous form.

Pooh! Pooh! Papa Dionne—Here Are Octuplets

A WELCOME addition to the J. Chesney stable is this litter of eight pups shown here with their mother, Patsy, a thoroughbred German Police dog. The Chesney horses are quartered at Rockingam preparing for the Spring Meeting, Monday, May 25, and the puppies are along.

Red Sox

Sign Trojans' Diamond Star

Los Angeles, May 22 (INS)—William J. Hanlon, star third baseman of the University of Southern California baseball team, was en route eastward today for a berth on the Boston Red Sox team.

Announcement of the contract was made after Hanlon received a wire from Eddie Collins, manager of the Boston club, asking him to report at once.

Victory Delights 'Pam' Barton

Southport, Eng., May 22 (UP)—The [illegible] finally caught up with [illegible] Newell, the [illegible] and Pam Barton, [illegible] English girl, won the women's British golf championship by the [illegible] one-sided score of 7 up and 5 to go.

Miss Newell had shattered the competitive record for the course with a 74 on Saturday, when she won the qualifying medal.

Pamela "Pam" Barton, runner-up for the [illegible] in 1934 and 1935, reached the turn 3 up on the sensational tournament pace-setter and favorite and she had comparatively [illegible] the second round of [illegible] for the title when Miss Newell's game fell completely [illegible]

And after she sealed victory at [illegible] 31 [illegible] Miss Barton's [illegible] vanished. She jumped into the air with girlish delight and cried:

"How great it is to be a champion."

Murder at Rainbow's End

New England Police Stories

As Told by Ace Crime Reporters

40-Years' Savings Stolen

Teamster Dies in Barn Fire

This is the 108th in a series of true murder-mystery stories, taken from New England police and court annals, now being published daily by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Henry Daily, one of the ace reporters for the American and Sunday Advertiser, relates this exciting story of "Murder at Rainbow's End."

By HENRY DAILY

When a man has waited for 40 years to buy something, that something has already become a part of his life.

John Cuniff, teamster from the day he bought his first horse when he was a lad of six, had lived around the Newtons for the past [illegible] years.

[illegible]

10 Years Saving

To reach that goal he had saved [illegible] years.

[illegible] West Newton on [illegible] May 25, 1920 [illegible]

[illegible]

"Right smart team they were," he mused.

"Maybe you should have bought them," said the friend.

"No," said John.

[illegible] then added "Told Ed about them and he thought I was right in not buying them."

To most of the community Ed was Edwin O. Childs, long time mayor of Newton, [illegible] Johns [illegible] And Mayor Childs would [illegible] been the last to ask for it.

"Tony thought I was smart to wait, too."

To [illegible] kept the corner fruit stand. Mayor or fruit peddler, they were the same to John. And he to them.

There was a silence punctuated only by the contented puffing of pipe.

"Too bad Nick got fired," said the friend.

Fellow Worker

John didn't answer. Nick had been a fellow worker of his, but he had never particularly cared for him. The fellow didn't have much love for horses.

The friend left after a few casual remarks about the rain expected in the morning and John made ready to retire.

It was not quite 9 o'clock but he had nothing to keep him up longer—and nothing on his mind or soul to keep him from an honest night's sleep.

He carefully knocked the last embers from his pipe on the old [illegible] door and cast a last look at the [illegible]

He felt [illegible] the last [illegible] and washed up the [illegible] stairs leading to his little [illegible]

It was the last time he ever walked up those stairs.

In the early hours of the next day there was a sudden burst of [illegible] from the haymow when adjoined his room. In a matter of seconds the entire building was [illegible]

Firemen reached the [illegible] after [illegible] alarm had been [illegible] but there was [illegible] to do but wait [illegible] flames to sweep [illegible]

Charred Body

[illegible] the charred body of John Cuniff was brought [illegible] and they had been his friends too, had feared what they hoped not to find in the shambles.

One of the firemen finally broke the tension.

"John would have been glad the horses got loose."

At the first sign of smoke the [illegible] which was always kept open in warm weather.

It was the same fireman [illegible] the head of the body.

"Come here quickly," he muttered.

A white-faced [illegible] gathered about. Then one of them spoke one of the sharpest and [illegible] words in the English tongue.

"Murder."

And it was murder. But something more than a man had been [illegible] of Rainbow.

* * *

In another section of Newton, around 3.45 that morning Patrolman Nicholas Veduccio, now a captain, was chatting with a fellow officer, William Mahoney, since lieutenant, as he waited the few minutes before ringing in his box.

When he did call his station [illegible] was [illegible] and a heavy heart that he turned again to Mahoney.

"John's been burned to death in his barn," he said. "The captain says he hasn't got any report on it yet, but he knows darn well that John wouldn't have left anything which could have started a fire.

"Poor John. He couldn't have had an enemy in the world. It must have been accidental."

"$500 Enemy"

They were right in a way. The dead teamster hadn't had an enemy. But he had had $500. And murders have been committed for almost $500 less.

Now as the two officers exchanged a few remembrances of their mutual friend they heard the sound of a [illegible] tracks of the Boston and Albany Railroad, only a few yards from where they were standing.

If that man had been walking they still might have heard him, but they would have thought nothing of it. But a man does not run at night without cause.

"Hey, where are you going," shouted Mahoney.

The man did not stop to shout an answer but only quickened his steps.

Together the two officers set off on a jog toward the tracks.

"Hey, you," yelled Mahoney again.

The man suddenly left the tracks and started to clamber up the further bank.

Mahoney fired a shot in the air and broke into a fast sprint followed by Veduccio.

At the top of the bank the officers caught up with the man and took him by the arm.

"What's the idea of running, going to a fire?"

Forced Laugh

The man started for a second and then forced a laugh.

"Why you know me. I'm Nick Caruso. I got a lot of friends here in Newton. I just ran because I thought you were hold-up men."

"You can tell that to the captain," answered Mahoney curtly. "Besides what were you doing on railroad property? Don't you know that's trespassing?"

On the way back to the station with their prisoner one of the officers suddenly stopped short.

"Say," he said, "did you notice that funny motion Caruso made with his arm just as he started to climb the bank? Now that I think of it I have a hunch he was throwing something away. I'm going back as soon as it's light."

[illegible]

Anger Mounts

[illegible]

For three days Caruso was grilled relentlessly at the jail.

He steadfastly protested his ignorance of the crime and kept insisting that he had a lot of friends [illegible]

Trump Card

[illegible] to prove the trump card in the prosecution.

Caruso's brother had just arrived from Italy and he was allowed to hold [illegible] conversations with the [illegible]

[illegible] Caruso admitted to his brother that he had killed Cuniff.

Trial opened the following November and Caruso was sentenced to life imprisonment after he had changed his plea from not guilty of murder to that of guilty of second degree murder.

2 Lives, Motive

This has not been a story of suspense and mystery.

It has been the story of two lives and the [illegible] of May 26, 1920.

Cuniff has been dead these 16 years, his memory still respected by those who knew him.

Caruso is still looking from his cell windows at Charlestown because he killed a man.

He killed the dream of a man's life-time but he was not convicted for that.

(In tomorrow's Boston Evening American another true murder-mystery story, culled from New England police and court annals, will appear.)

He Got Life

Nick Caruso, sentenced to life imprisonment for the second degree murder of John Cuniff, Newton teamster.

Freezing in Summer!

Adventurer Finds a North Pole Right in Big City

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

For a long time I've been telling the world that you don't have to go places to find adventure. I remember once saying that you could get more thrills just by sticking around your own home town than you could by signing up with Admiral Byrd for one of his exploring trips to the South Pole.

FLOYD GIBBONS

And now, here comes John Standmann of The Bronx, N. Y., to tell me I was right about that South Pole business. Admiral Byrd went down into the Antarctic to study the ice age, but Jack Standmann stayed home and studied another ice age in The Bronx. The Admiral loaded up a boat, signed on a crew, and sailed away toward the South Pole, but Jack just put on his coat and a pair of gloves and, in 10 minutes, found a spot that was just as cold as anything the Byrd expedition was able to dig up in a year's stay way down there at the bottom of the world

It was in June, 1932, which is a strange time for a man to go Arctic adventuring in The Bronx. Jack was working in an ice-cream factory and that more or less explains everything. The plant was a new one, and a lot of new machinery had been installed in it. One of the [illegible] was the big steel conveyor that carried [illegible] into the freezing [illegible]. That [illegible] was the [illegible] of Jack's existence. The freezing [illegible] was [illegible] where the temperature ran around [illegible]. Moisture used to gather [illegible] and turn into ice. During a week's time, enough of [illegible] that there was danger of it stopping the [illegible]. Then [illegible] facing a [illegible].

That job was [illegible] the freezing [illegible] and back and [illegible] every bit of two hours [illegible] a time, for no man could stand [illegible] temperature for more than [illegible] minutes [illegible] while the plant was operating [illegible] after closing time. The result was that Jack [illegible] time, and [illegible].

On this particular day, the plant had been working overtime itself. The minute the machinery stopped running Jack put on a lot of heavy clothes, slipped his hands into a pair of thick warm gloves, and crawled about 30 feet along the belt conveyor into that freezing tunnel. He worked as fast as he could, but he had been in there only about a quarter of an hour when his clothes were frozen so stiff that he could hardly move about and his gloves were so hard and brittle that he could scarcely use his hands. He had just about decided to crawl back and thaw out when suddenly he heard the door of the tunnel open, saw the lights go out, and then heard the door slam shut again.

It was cold enough [illegible] colder. He knew all too well [illegible]. The light switch was [illegible] the wall [illegible] that anybody was in there [illegible] the tunnel door. Even when [illegible] groped his way out of the [illegible] conveyor belts. He had [illegible] in that freezing [illegible] to die.

Jack started to [illegible] he was hoarse. But it was like yelling in a vacuum. The walls of the tunnel were insulated and sound proof. He began to crawl along the tunnel, his clothes freezing to the [illegible] at every foot of the way. His gloves were as stiff as boards [illegible] the very marrow of his bones. Pretty soon he would begin to get sleepy—and then

It wasn't a pleasant subject, but Jack couldn't help thinking about it. Would they find him dead in the morning? Another idea struck him—a grisly, ghastly thought. When morning came, they would start the conveyor, and his stiff, dead body would be ground to pieces by the cogs of the great steel belt. Out of that machine, built to deliver the fixings for parties and the makings for kids' ice-cream cones, would come a sickening mass of frozen and lacerated flesh—flesh that had once been Jack Standmann.

A prey to thoughts like that, Jack almost went crazy. "It's hard to explain the horror of freezing to death in a pitch dark tunnel," he says. "In my frenzy I imagined I had been in there for hours. I knew I'd be as stiff as my own gloves long before morning. But suddenly it occurred to me that I might try knocking on the wall."

Jack didn't have much hope that they would work. The walls were too thick. But at one point a [illegible] storage compartment adjoined the tunnel [illegible] at all. And at that point [illegible] strength. Would anyone go into that compartment? Would anyone hear his [illegible]?

Jack pounded for a long time. [illegible] and his failing arms were the only part [illegible] feeling left in them when suddenly the lights went on. Someone yelled to him, and Jack doesn't remember whether he answered or not. But presently he felt himself being [illegible] out of the tunnel and carried out into the warm June air.

Well, sir, if anybody in the Byrd expedition had any adventure as thrilling or as nearly fatal as that, I haven't heard of it. And the funny part of it is that everybody in Boston has had adventures just as hair-raising. Send that yarn of YOURS in. Watch for the thrilling story tomorrow.

New Film Find Revealed

By HARRIS MORGAN

One welcome revival [illegible] of "A Connecticut Yankee," and a new melodrama, "Forgotten Faces," is the new double-featured program at the Paramount and Fenway theaters.

The whole has variety and entertainment and the presence of Jane Rhodes, a new actress with extreme promise, in "Forgotten Faces" makes that portion of the bill highly exciting.

It is that kind of a story. Action.

HANEY EYES FRENCH FINANCE

Radicals of Nation

FORCE FRANC'S VALUE DOWN

Follow Raw Dealism

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, May 22—At this writing, the French franc has again dipped below the exchange level at which it pays to ship gold from France to this country.

The people of France are afraid of francs, and, therefore, are hoarding gold, or even English currency. Those who can, want to get their money out of France.

Why?

Because the new radical administration in France is considering doing much the same sort of thing that has been going on or seriously considered in this country. The labor federation over there has demanded the following:

A reduction of the working week, without reduced pay.

Raising the age for compulsory school education.

A vast scheme of public works, to be financed by short-term public debt to be forced on the banks.

Participation by organized labor in the control of industry.

* * *

What does all this mean? Why does it cause hoarding and gold exports?

One way of putting the matter is that organized labor in France is demanding the rest of the people support them, regardless of their productivity.

They want jobs made for them, and they want to work shorter hours so that it will take more of them to do the job. They want "public works" for this purpose, and although such works bring in little or no revenue they want higher wages per hour.

Where will the money come from? Where will the goods come from? Since the laborers will not be earning wages by production, their "wages" will have to come out of the incomes or savings of others.

Thus either the earnings of capital and enterprise will be reduced, the savings of the people will be drawn upon, or both. In any case, the net result is to eat up saving. Either new saving is prevented or past savings are taken, or both.

* * *

Saving is the source of all capital. If everybody just spent and never saved, there would soon be no capital. New capital would cease to come into existence. Old capital would not be replaced.

But without capital, production would be greatly reduced, and the productive employment of labor be cut in half. Without capital we would sink into barbarism.

* * *

There are three notions about the matter.

(1) Some say: Why not have the government do the saving? The complete answer, however, is that the government has nothing to save except what it takes away from the people. There is nobody to save but "us."

Nor can the government make us save except by taxes and forced loans levied upon us. Low interest rates kill individual saving.

(2) Some say: Why not government borrowing?

But what will the government borrow except it be your savings and mine? Government borrowing is our debt. Does a man save by going into debt? (The most you can say is that he may finally be forced to save when it comes time to pay his debts.)

(3) Some say: Why not give laborers enough wages to enable them to do the saving?

But where are you going to get the extra money to give the laborers? If you borrow it, you take away the savings of others. The same is true of taxes. This does not add to existing savings.

And if the government did take our savings away and turn them over to laborers in the form of "high wages," they would have one of two results: Either (1) they would save and become the capitalists, and so be up against the same taxes and monetary uncertainties that weigh upon those who now do the saving and investment. Or (2) they would not be able to save, because of increased living costs and lack of productive employment.

* * *

We have to produce earned incomes in order to have anything to save. We have to use savings as productive capital in order to have any earned incomes.

TRADE Conditions BETTER

CONSUMER BUYING UP

By Associated Press

New York, May 22—Indications of a renewal of the forward movement of trade was disclosed today in the weekly review by Dun & Bradstreet.

"Checking what had appeared to be the commencement of a seasonal slackening, there was a resumption of the forward movement in many trade branches during the week," it was stated.

"The steady expansion of consumer buying, in spite of the cool weather in some sections, was accompanied by more evenness in the gain in retail sales for the various districts of the country.

"Buying at wholesale was at a more attractive pace, complemented by the growing volume of re-orders for rearly summer goods. Instead of extending the recent gradual recession, industrial operations turned upward in many divisions.

"Higher temperatures which prevailed during most of the week accelerated retail distribution, with the hetrogeneous demands benefiting nearly all departments.

"Although virtually all of the cities reported a rise in distribution from that of the week preceding, the percentage gain over last year's was shortened, in some instances, giving greater uniformity for all districts. Taking the country as a whole, however, the estimated volume of retail sales was more than the 1935 comparative by 8 to 12 per cent."

Based upon orders which have been received by principal wholesale houses, a heavier buying season is indicated for early summer in several years, it was stated.

"In many (wholesale) branches buying thus far in May has been at the best rate for the month since 1930," the review found, "with the increase in some items running up to 25 to 30 per cent over last year's bookings."

Transue & Williams

Transue & Williams Steel Forging Corp. declared a dividend of 15 cents, payable July 1 to stock of record June 15. This marks resumption of dividends, the last payment having been 25 cents quarterly on July 15, 1931.

Darby Petroleum

Darby Petroleum Corp. declared a dividend of 25 cents on the capital stock payable July 15 to stock of record July 3. On Jan. 15, 1936, a dividend of 25 cents was paid.

Wall Street Hears

New York, May 22 (INS)—That Westinghouse Electric (WX) will show approximately $1.60 a share earned in the second quarter.

That a profit of around 10 cents a share may be reported by Houston Oil (HO) for the three months ending June 30.

That additional extras by Standard Oil of California (SCD) are expected over the balance of the year.

EDISON Seeks to Buy CENTRAL

DEAL UNDER STUDY

New York, May 22—Consolidated Edison Co. of New York is negotiating with New York Central Railroad for the purchase of Central's vast network of electric power generating plants and sub-stations stretching from New York City northward through Westchester County to Croton, as well as along the Harlem and Putnam divisions.

Consolidated Edison experts with Central engineers have been studying and appraising Central's electric power system for several years, but the New York American learned exclusively yesterday that these studies are now nearly complete and negotiations are nearing a climax.

As yet, nothing in the way of a contract of sale or acquisition "is on paper," but within the next week or ten days it will be known whether Consolidated has been successful in its negotiations for the acquisition of the Central properties, or whether the negotiations have failed, it was intimated.

* * *

Both Central and Consolidated withheld comment on the status of the negotiations, but sources close to the companies indicated these are the salient factors in the discussions now under way:

"Consolidated Edison would purchase Central's entire electric power system.

"Consolidated would give Central a preferred rate on purchases of electric power to operate electric trains and plant."

Officials of both Consolidated Edison and New York Central have considered the proposition advantageous enough to both parties to give subject several years' technical study.

From Consolidated's point of view, acquisition of Central's electric properties would tighten Consolidated's dominance in the Metropolitan's electric field. Consolidated already provides the greater part of New York city with electric power, and serves an extensive part of Westchester county also.

* * *

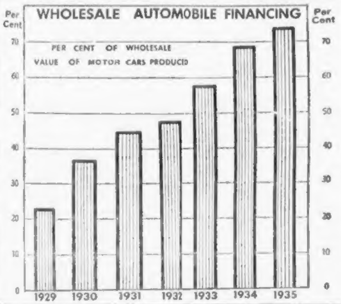
Acquisition of the properties would expand Consolidated's potential power load, and greatly widen its already extensive facilities.

From Central's standpoint, the road would realize proceeds from the sale of its properties, free itself of the detail of operation of its electric power plants, and secure a preferred low price in its purchase of electric power from the Consolidated plants.

Insurance to Pay

A dividend of 20 per cent, payable on all policies expiring during the period July 1 to July 31, 1936, has been declared by the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company. This is American Mutual's 573d consecutive dividend of 20 per cent or more.

AUTO FINANCING



BY DEALERS

Borrowing Gains in 1935

In 1935, finance companies lent to dealers enough money to pay three-quarters of the factory price of all motor vehicles that passed through the dealers' hands.

The bars on the chart show how such financing, measured in per cent of wholesale value of motor cars produced, has increased since 1929.

Wholesale dealers in 1929 borrowed money from finance companies equivalent only to 23 per cent of the wholesale value of motor cars produced.

In 1935 this had increased to 74 per cent. It is evident that the average dealer has not enough working capital with which to carry his inventory even when he is selling faster than he is buying.

Another reason for this increase in borrowings from finance companies is the inability of dealers to obtain loans through the banks.

Formerly a considerable part of their borrowings came from banks. Now banks generally are unwilling to loan money to dealers.

Wall Street Sidelights

New York, May 22—Latest quotations on puts and calls are closer to the market in some of the active stocks than for several weeks.

This is taken to suggest that holders of the issues against which the options are written do not expect any considerable fluctuation from existing levels for the next thirty days at least.

Calls on Chrysler for this period are 6 points above the market and puts 4 points below. Ten days ago the spread was about 8 points on the upside and 6 points on the downside. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel common stocks are each quoted 4 points down on puts; General Motors 3½ points up, 2 points down; Air Reduction 2½ points up, 2 down; Montgomery Ward 1½ up, half a point down; Southern Pacific 2 up, three quarters of a point down; Kennecott 1½ up, half a point down Douglas Aircraft, 5 up 4 down, and Sears Roebuck 3 up, 1½ down.

German Financial Position Alarming

Anent recent published reports that Great Britain had warned her bankers against the extension of further credits to Germany, a brokerage firm received the following information yesterday:

"It now appears this was based on full and complete reports furnished to the government by English experts on the German economic situation. It is becoming increasingly clear that the German internal situation, economically, is one of these days going to be a source of worry for the world. The Reich is experiencing difficulty in obtaining foreign exchange to purchase raw materials abroad and this is operating to handicap the nation's vast armament program. Internally, Germany's rearmament will probably be met by some type of inflationary financing and in this connection the appointment of General Goering to supersede Dr. Schacht was probably more significant than is realized in other countries."

Factors in Nickel Plate Outlook

Expanding its business and keeping expenses down, New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad, the "Nickel Plate" line, turns in net earnings of 15 cents a common share for the first four 1936 months, against 19 cents a preferred share in the like 1935 period. Commenting on the income outlook for this road, Rhoades & Co. says: "Another factor in the situation is the probability of a substantial cash payment in settlement of the arrearage on the Wheeling & Lake Erie prior lien stock, of which Nickel Plate owns 115,193 shares. The former company is seeking consent of its stockholders to refund the 7 per cent issue with a lower coupon stock, and will undoubtedly make provision for the $35 per share accumulations. The road's (Wheeling) strong position and earnings of $18.19 a share on this class of stock in 1935 make the payment a distinct possibility, which would net the Nickel Plate something in excess of $4,000,000."

Rail Equipment Orders Heavy

Rail equipment orders, after a long latent period, are beginning to appear again. Yesterday's group of new orders is estimated to have run close to $15,000,000. Chesapeake & Ohio Railway ordered 3500 freight cars costing $11,925,000 and Pere Marquette allocated $1,685,000 orders for 500 cars. Norfolk & Western ordered 1000 hopper coal cars. It is interesting to note that the C. & O. and N. & W. are soft coal carriers, and coal traffic has been heavy this year. Lehigh Valley railroad but a short time ago also ordered 1000 coal cars.

Woolworth Hedging Against Inflation

Many observers are now inclined to feel they have discovered another reason behind F. W. Woolworth's action in adding higher-price lines of merchandise. As a result of official remarks at the annual meeting Wednesday in Watertown, some now feel that Woolworth is intending to use the higher-price ranges as a hedge against possible monetary inflation. The official presiding at the meeting, discussing expansion of unit prices to 40 cents and higher from 5-to-25, remarked that "the management is confident that the widening of prices will . . . better enable the company to cope with any unusual conditions which might arise in the future." Through the unit system of selling parts of an article at 40 cents, the company can now sell a complete article for as high as 2 or 3 dollars. When the company stepped up to the 40-cent unit level, the belief was widespread that it presaged complete abandoning of the present policy.

Curtiss Gets Award

In a secret and restricted contract the Navy Department has ordered from the Curtiss Airplane & Motor Co., Inc., Buffalo, 40 planes and spare parts, the cost of which totals approximately $900,000.

WAR Spirit Seen in EUROPE

TWO BUDGET IDEA GAINS

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service.)

New York, May 22—Advices from Europe must be read in light of the dismal prospect that this may be the pre-war period.

Accordingly, even the revival in France and England of an impulse to reconsider the war debts may not be a mere spiritual rebirth.

M. Herriot, in fighting vainly to continue to honor the war debts, had the clearest understanding of France's vital interests. As new contingencies loom, other French statesmen, including M. Blum, have joined him. Rumors come of similar British intent.

As a matter of fact, restoration of credit is doubtless looked upon as a form of preparedness.

Likewise, in connection with the recent British budget, policy in the last analysis was dictated by Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini.

Budget balancing and economy were subordinated to the British belief of the need for important rearmament. The vigorous re-armament will color the meaning of the statistics of the British heavy industries for many months and perhaps years.

In spirit, if not in name, Britain, too, is moving over to the two budget idea. Under the surface, there is a disposition to regard the re-armament program as a special expenditure distinct and apart from the current outlays of government.

The expenditures, it is contemplated, will be spread over a five-year period, and, instead of adhering to a strict pay as you go policy, which will entail raising taxes to the breaking point, the apparent plan is to pay for the military weapons over a period of 10 years, resorting to borrowing as well as increased taxation in the meantime.

Thus Britain as the post-depression model of prudent pubic finance will be in a less favorable position than before.

Nevertheless in fairness, it should be observed that but for the re-armament program it would have been feasible to have allocated relief payments out of a substantial prospective surplus.

Thus, the war spirit unbalances budgets, and impairs popular living standards.

If men were really adults, instead of children, and could compose their differences, they could employ labor strictly in productive occupations which woud give the people more of the good things of life.

As long as men are diverted to unproductive activities and output is used for armament, there is a substantial reduction from the heap of consumable goods.

Bank Clearings Up for Week

Bank clearings at outside centers displayed a higher tendency. The lowered total at New York city, however, held the aggregate in check and prevented a more substantial rise.

The total for the week ended Wednesday, May 20, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $5,275,135,000 against $5,084,202,000 for the same week of last year, an increase of 3.8 per cent.

This compared with a gain of 10.5 per cent in the previous week. Clearings of $3,251,027,000 at New York city were 4.3 per cent under the previous period, but were only 0.1 per cent below the 1935 comparative. At outside centers, the aggregate of $2,024,108,000 was 10.7 per cent in excess of the figure for last year.

The total for the past week showed a gain of $55,776,000 when contrasted with that of the week preceding. For the corresponding two weeks a year ago, a rise of $360,834,000 was recorded.

Increases over last year's figures appeared at all cities with he exception of Kansas City and New York. Gains were particularly marked at Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Atlanta, New Orleans and Dallas.

Retail Advertising Makes Large Gain

Chicago, May 22—Retail advertising in newspapers during the week ended May 9 was greater by 8.3 per cent than during the corresponding week of 1935, Advertising Age reported today.

For that week the newspapers in 65 reporting cities carried a total of 19,699,187 lines of retail display advertising, compared with 18,193,843 lines for the same week of 1935.

This is by far the largest weekly gain shown since the beginning eighth year, the publication reports. The highest previous gain, 6.3 per cent, was registered during the week ended January 18.

For the year to date, retail advertising in the reporting cities is 8,251,370 lines larger than it was during the same period of 1935. For 1936 to date, the total is 308,686,840 lines, compared with 300,435,470 lines for 1935.

Excess Reserves Up Further

With gold continuing to flow in and government expenditures spurting forward the week ended May 20, excess reserves jumped $90,000,000 to $2,860,000,000, the highest since March 12.

Monetary gold stocks went up $73,000,000 while the Treasury drew on its cash and deposits with reserve banks $23,000,000. As moderate offsetting factors, money in circulation rose $8,000,000 and nonmember deposits $3,000,000.

Member banks in New York City reported a $4,000,000 decline in loans to local brokers, but increased loans outside the city slightly. However, "other loans," mostly commercial nature, increased $25,000,000, the largest rise in some time.

Complete Weather Report

FORECAST TILL 8 P. M. SATURDAY

For Boston and Vicinity: Fair tonight; Saturday partly cloudy; rising temperature, gentle to moderate variable winds, becoming southwesterly and increasing Saturday.

Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut: Fair tonight and Saturday; rising temperature.

Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont: Mostly cloudy tonight and Saturday; rising temperature.

Atlantic Coast, Eastport to Sandy Hook: Gentle variable winds shifting to southwest Saturday and becoming fresh, fair tonight, increasing cloudiness Saturday.

Fire Weather Hazard: Over southern Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, low humidity, no prospect of rain, moderate and increasing fire hazard in the brush and woodlands.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

Excepting a few light showers in the East Gulf States and in the upper Mississippi valley fair weather has prevailed over the country for the past 24 hours. The eastern high pressure area is central near Montreal, 30.72 inches, and the highest barometer readings of record in the warm season prevail in the Northeastern States. The northwestern depression is over Manitoba, 29.34 inches at Ft. Churchill, with a trough extending southwestward to Arizona. The great mass of polar and modified polar continental air which moved southeastward from the Hudson bay region now covers all states east of the Mississippi. This air mass has increased to an unusual weight for this time of year.

In central New England and Vermont on Sunday the indications are for considerably warmer weather, possibility of showers toward evening or night.

COTTON MILLS

Welcome TARIFF Boost

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

All other New England business news faded into the background with the announcement tariffs on some cotton cloth lines has been raised.

The increases ranging from 3 to 42 per cent were made under the flexible tariff act by President Roosevelt on the recommendation of the United States tariff commission.

Thus a great New England industry which has long been plagued by a variety of domestic troubles and had recently been pushed to the brink of despair by mounting Japanese imports is reprieved. It is good news that might have been made even better news by the declaration of an embargo. For the commission clearly states that American workmen have been competing with Japanese imports produced under intolerable working conditions.

• • •

It is worth noting that the 85 per cent of the employes in Japan's cotton mills were girls from 14 to 28 years of age. Recruited under contracts of from one to 3 years the girls even lived under strict management control and received the paltry sum of 23 to 25 cents per day. And while the length of that day was not noted in the story we read it is safe to wager that it hardly compared with the average working day of New England cotton mill employes. The tariff increases do represent a victory, it is true, but the fight can hardly be over until all cotton textile imports produced by coolie labor in virtual serfdom are eliminated. The less than 60 per cent now affected is not enough.

• • •

Minute Analysis: Youngstown Sheet & Tube common . . Of which there are 1,200,000 shares outstanding junior to 150,000 preferred shares . . . Probable earnings of $3.25 per common share in first half of year strongly suggest the stock is undervalued . . . The management is said to be working on a plan caring for back preferred dividends . . . And with second half results expected to be better than those of the first half it is entirely possible Youngstown common will be on a dividend basis within a year . . . It presents an advantageous switch for those holding U. S. Steel common.

• • •

The market is dawdling about in to-be-expected fashion. News from abroad is hardly exciting, domestic developments colorless for the most part and trade results, except in special instances, seem to have been discounted in advance. As a consequence there is neither a well defined buying nor selling urge and traders as well as most investors seem content to loll on the sidelines. Underneath it all the hunt for values still goes on and as the list is curried by analysts we may expect sudden flare-ups here and there. Earnings and dividends come first and then budding earnings and prospective dividend blossoms as owners of money seek to make it earn its keep.

• • •

This and That: Such a stock, as that sought above, is U. S. Pipe & Foundry . . . With quarterly dividends of $1.50 per share declared for the year it yields slightly better than 4 per cent at current levels . . . And it is an attractive way to participate in expansion in the building field . . . For a company that does around 50 per cent of the total business in which it specializes it seems attractively priced . . . Under the second heading comes Northern Pacific . . . It may show as much as $4 per share this year . . . With the aid of a much larger wheat crop in its territory . . . And the prospect of a larger dividend from Burlington.

QUIET DEALINGS THROUGHOUT

New York, May 22—The stock market took a shy look at generally bright business news today and bids for many of the leading shares were raised fractions to a point or more.

Traders felt their way carefully, however, and quiet dealings were the rule throughout. The utilities, steels and industrial specialties pointed the way upward.

Favorite issues on the buying side included Consolidated Edison, American Water Works, U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Western Union, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Johns-Manville, Westinghouse, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Philip Morris, Continental Can, Phillips Petroleum, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Amerada and National Lead.

Commodities, foreign currencies and bonds were narrow.

The rails were only moderately firm despite the fact that last week's freight car loadings, officially reported today, were up more than seasonal to the best level since October, 1935.

A slackening in automobile production during the current week was in line with some previous forecasts.

Huge war preparations being made by Great Britain tended to overshadow other foreign developments, from a market standpoint.

On the domestic front the tax question, now being threshed out at Washington, continued to hold the attention of financial analysts.

The boost of about 42 per cent in textile tariffs, principally affecting Japan, was cheering to some manufacturers who have been complaining of excessive foreign competition.

Mixed Events

Dun & Bradstreet found that higher temperatures which prevailed during most of the week helped retail distribution, with widely assorted demand benefitting nearly all departments.

While an upturn in sales over the previous week was reported from virtually all cities, the percentage gain over last year's was said to have been shortened. But the volume was estimated at between 8 to 12 per cent above the 1935 figure.

The Federal Reserve System disclosed that, in the week ended Wednesday, the country's gold stocks increased $73,000,000 to a record peak of $10,375,000,000.

At the same time the Bank of France, for the week ended May 16, stated that the gold outflow from its vaults had lessened considerably. In that period the bank lost the equivalent of slightly more than $34,000,000 in the yellow metal, which compared with $181,689,000 the week before.

The French franc, at the beginning of foreign exchange transactions, was up .00⅛ of a cent at 6.58⅛ cents, and sterling was ⅛ of a cent firmer at $4.97⅛.

Comments of Brokers

As we judge the current technical position, any real volume of liquidation at this point would probably result in sharply lower prices. Continued dullness and fairly steady quotations for a few days would be favorable to prospect of an early upswing. Meanwhile, awaiting attitude appears advisable from trading viewpoint.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber & Co.

We would be prepared to follow activity in whichever direction it develops, from the low levels of last week.—J. E. Molloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

In view of the cautious attitude that has been adopted by most traders at this time, it would be prudent to fall in line and exercise a little more patience by awaiting the test period which will come within the next 48 hours.—R. S. Feigus, Prentice, Blauner & Brady.

We feel that at the present time the trader might favor the long side in anticipation of another move towards last week's prices. —N. T. Hyde, Jr., Josephthal & Co.

The market is at a level from which it should turn upward if the irregular uptrend since the April lows is to continue.—G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.

Broadly speaking, the general list still seems in process of creating a dependable foundation.—J. S. Bache & Co.

While trade news is fully up to expectations, the seasonal turndown offsets its promise of higher stock prices for the pull. As a result, only a trading policy is warranted.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

We feel rather optimistic in regard to the future trend, because it appears to us that the favorable features of the situation are more fundamental than those which currently are operating to promote caution.—Thomson & McKinnon.

DAIRY PRODUCTS

Production Up

Production of dairy products increased sharply in the first quarter compared with a year ago, but production is expected to taper off during the second and third quarters, the Department of Agriculture reports.

The output for the year will probably exceed the average for the last five years, it was predicted. During the coming summer butter prices will probably average higher than in the summer of 1935, the department said, reporting that the demand for dairy products has improved.

FRENCH GOLD

Coverage Up

Paris, May 22 (INS)—Showing its first rise since March, gold coverage for French currency reached 62.35 per cent during the week ending May 15, an increase of .02 per cent, the Bank of France announced today.

Improvement in gold coverage came despite loss of 515,000,000 francs in gold by the Bank of France.

EXPORTS, Imports Gain IN APRIL

COMMERCE DEPT. REPORTS

Washington, May 22—April gains in both exports and imports—the fourth consecutive month to show increases over last year—were reported today by the commerce department.

Imports increased more than exports, however, to produce an April import surpluse of $8,947,000. It was the third successive month in which the United States has bought more than it has sold.

The run of heavier buying resulted in an import surplus of $12,414,000 for the first four months of the year, against an export surplus of $21,229,00 in the first third of 1935.

Compared with April of last year, exports last month were 18 per cent and imports 19 per cent larger. For the first four months of this year, compared with the same in 1935, exports gained 12 per cent and imports 17 per cent.

April Exports

April exports, which usually drop 6 per cent from March, were only 1 per cent smaller this year, while imports, which normally recede about 3 per cent, were 2 per cent larger. April exports were $193,490,000, against imports of $202,437,000.

In April, 1935, exports were $164,151,000 and imports $170,500,000.

The commerce department noted that while exports of a few agricultural products had continued to run behind last year, "a wide range of such exports have shown substantial improvements."

Cotton exports increased from $21,796,000 to $22,764,000; tobacco exports went up from $3,955,000 to $5,747,000.

Exports of fodders and feed, vegetables and preparations, fruits and nuts, and lard, were other farm products to show gains.

Most of the larger export gains, however, were in non agricultural products, including petroleum, metal manufactures, machinery, electrical apparatus, chemical products and textile manufactures.

Bond Price Trends Are Irregular

New York, May 22 (INS)—Irregular price trends again featured the bond market today, as industrials and rails held small fractions to either side of their previous closings in continued dull trading.

Dealings in the industrial list were marked by a break of nearly 6 points in Auburn 4¾s and a spurt of 5 points in Gould Coupler 6s. Francisco Sugar 7½s dropped a point, but other price changes were of small proportions.

U. S. Governments met with profit taking in the wake of their steady advance into new high ground over the last few days. Losses of from 1-32 to 3-32's of a point were sustained.

Foreign bonds were generally lower, Rhine Westphalia 6s slumping more than 2 points.

Washington Notebook

Washington, May 22 (AP)—Expansion in imports of goods is reflected in customs collections, despite lowering of tariffs under reciprocal trade agreements.

Customs receipts for the month to May 19, as shown in the treasury's statement, totaled $20,134,079 against $18,500,508 in the same period last year. For the current fiscal year, which began July 1, customs receipts are up more than $40,000,000.

Passenger fare revenues of class 1 railroads in the first quarter increased about $11,000,000 over the comparable period last year to $96,520,182, figures compiled by the Interstate Commerce Commission reveal. Rail authorities are divided on what effect the impeding cut in passenger fares would have upon the upward trend in revenues from that source.

Reports to the ICC indicate rail maintenance expenses increased sharply in March, partly attributable to flood losses. Class 1 roads spent $34,183,434 for maintenance of way and structures against $27,789,280 in the same month last year and $64,159,933 for maintenance of equipment against $56,915,874.

The Commerce Department has been informed that production and distribution of vegetable oils in China, including Tung oil, has been put under government control, with plans for improving production. The United States has been the leading buyer of Tung oil for paint and varnish manufacture and imports in recent months have increased substantially.

CRITICS FIND

Tax RETURNS BEING Probed

By B. C. Forbes

Some business men and others who have openly opposed certain New Deal policies find that the income tax division of the Treasury Department has become keenly interested in their tax returns.

This column has repeatedly told that, while innumerable responsible men of affairs have roundly condemned different Washington activities, they have forbidden any quoting of them because they feared governmental reprisals.

Thousands of business concerns have received and are still receiving government orders.

"We know we would lose every dollar of government business if we publicly criticized the administration," has been the common comment.

Apparently Washington discovered and is zealously employing another method of "cracking down" on critics, the income tax whip.

From a well-informed Washington friend comes this communication:

"Because of criticisms I have expressed, you will not be surprised to learn that I am now being harassed concerning my income tax payments.

"I am informed that there are now more than 1600 cases of this type of activity being handled under the personal direction of the commissioner of internal revenue, Guy T. Helvering, most of them special cases directed against critics of the New Deal. Several of the cases, I am told, involve members of the Republican national committee.

"Those who have appeared before the House or Senate committees in opposition to the undistributed profits tax are among the latest to attract the attention of the income tax authorities."

While all these punitive activities are under way, the very classes which have been and are being singled out for harassment by the Treasury Department are being assured—once again—by the White House that a co-operative attitude is being adopted towards them and that their counsel and aid are invited in helping the administration to rescue it from its tragic failure to bring about reasonable expansion of legitimate employment.

While the Treasury is using vinegar, the White House ostensibly proffers molasses.

If consistency were definite proof of "little minds," the New Dealers could claim possession of the biggest brains in all history. They have scorned consistency, practised infinite inconsistency.

Victor F. Ridder, New York city administrator of the Works Progress Administration, is out with a broadside appealing to employers to apply to his office for workers. He proclaims:

"Business is better! Aggressive business requires adequate forces, if it is to keep pace with the uptrend. The greatest available reservoir of experienced workers in America is in the Works Progress Administration group, now ready and eager to get back into private employment.

"We can supply a qualified man or woman for any kind of job—laborer to corporation executive."

Follows a long classification of workers available, from accountants and actors to wrappers and writers. Over 200,000 are on the city's Works Progress Administration payroll.

Unfortunately, many of the 200,000 have not proved good walking advertisements. The contrast between the conduct of workers on private activities and those on "made" work is such that it is entirely superfluous for the taxspenders to hoist Works Progress Administration signs on any of their jobs.

THE LANDON PERSONALITY

GOVERNOR LANDON is winning America with a display of personality that is giving the nation a new and better understanding of the meaning of the word.

His inspiring message to the youth of America, delivered in the obscure little town of Attica, Kansas, has completed the amazing revelation of the character of this man who appears destined to lead his country back to sane government.

The early skeptics said Mr. Landon was lacking in personal pyrotechnics, believed necessary to appeal to the crowd. Millions of people have quit saying that. He has started American men and women thinking about what personality really is.

The worth of personality, like that of gold, is not in its glitter. Governor Landon is not a showman. He is master of none of the artifices of emotional appeal.

But people who see Governor Landon, hear him talk, read what he has said, have the comfortable feeling of having met an old and trusted friend. They carry away the feeling they have met him before.

And we all have met, not him perhaps, but the personable qualities that distinguish him above the statesmen of his day.

IN GOVERNOR LANDON you recognize all the signs of good character you like and admire in people who have touched the course of your life and have been helpful to it.

There are people like that in each of our lives. There is always the cherished memory of a friend who has tempered the poignancy of a troubled hour. Perhaps he is the family doctor who has brought a loved one out of the shadow, or the kindly pastor who has comforted an aching heart, or the merchant who balances his books with charity as well as with cash.

There is something about Governor Landon that makes you remember the good people you have known and the good things they have done. You see him, and think of the neighbor you respect and trust. His homely, simply-phrased philosophy is that of the honest, unselfish men and women you honor in the quiet circle of your own life.

THIS IS true personality, and the only kind worth while. It encompasses the character of Alf Landon, as much a part of him as his living and breathing.

The American people have learned to love him for it, and to feel instinctively that he is a man to whom the problems of a troubled nation may be safely entrusted.

National Maritime Day

IT IS TIMELY and fitting that today should have been designated by various bodies and organizations, loyal to our Merchant Marine, as National Maritime Day.

Attention cannot be too often focused upon this great and vital national interest.

The record of Congress has been one of intermittent and ineffectual consideration of this subject, with the result that needed money has been withheld, and appropriated money has been expended foolishly.

The United States MUST preserve its place upon the seas!

An adequate Merchant Marine is essential to success in the coming struggle to recover our lost overseas trade. It is equally necessary as an auxiliary to the national defense.

Let us hope that the bill, which is now in preparation for submission to the Senate, will be a scientific, comprehensive and enlightened treatment of this problem.

It is more than a problem.

It is an IMPERATIVE DUTY resting upon the President and Congress.

Homes for War Veterans

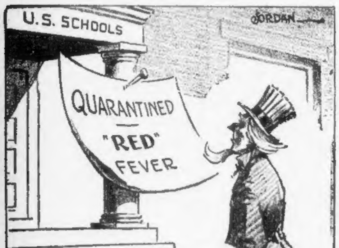
SEVENTY THOUSAND Massachusetts World War veterans will receive fifty million dollars bonus money' next month.

Fifty million dollars—fifty million ways to spend them, some wise; others foolish, it is ten to one that veterans will think twice before spending once. Unlike dollars earned, inherited or just picked up, here is money that seeks to compensate for enforced contact with pestilence, danger, death. As such, it cannot be thrown away.

Veterans, looking back and remembering, will want to build for the future, to invest in happiness, contentment and security. For this, there is no better opportunity than the home—the old one the family occupies or the new one seen as yet only in dreams.

Prices low, values high—THE NEW HOUSE IS THE VETERAN'S BEST BET. No better expenditure of his bonus money could be made.

Is This Next?



Red Fever is not yet epidemic in our public schools, although in colleges and universities a minority of misguided professors and instructors are definitely FOR Russia and AGAINST America.

With the zeal of Stalin's OGPU, these tools of the Soviet seek to poison with the germs of Communism young and fertile minds entrusted to them for guidance.

The more immature the mind, the better Moscow likes it. Those who do not know, cannot question its propaganda, refute its lies, reject its despotism.

That is why American public officials must be more vigilant now than ever before. The Communist teacher who masks his disloyalty with his profession MUST BE REMOVED FROM OUR CLASSROOMS.

The New York legislature, finding Red intrigue in its schools, acted. Other legislatures might well follow.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, May 22—Thoughts while strolling: What became of the phone girls who used to say "ni-yun" with the long i? Best short story title of the year: Ursula Parrott's "The Second Mink Coat." Never met a Ferdy who wasn't one of the society gadabouts. The perfect week-end boy. Add celebrity hair cut needers: Warren William. Elmer Pinkepank lives in Emma, Mo. Hi Elmer! Nobody in the movies is striving more for self improvment that Joan Crawford.

O. O. McIntyre

Disillusionment: Frank Case couldn't find a good cigar in Tampa. Francis Wallace, for my money, as a rattling good story teller.

What became of Dorothy Hall? Buff Cobb's son discovers that when he pets a kitty the motor starts. For Look the Same as They Did Fifteen Years Ago Club: D. W. Griffith. The air heroine, Nellie Granger, has inspired a flood of airplane fiction. That gray haired city slicker—Charles I. Scott.

Wavelet name: Mary Mannering. Names one doesn't forget, Otto Soglow and Cleon Throckmorton. Crying Shame: J. Edgar Hoover is paid the same as a congressman. It Is Happening in France, all right, all right. Must be terrible to have Dorothy Parker's reputation for wit. You know, here we are—make us laugh!

Look alikes: Sam Bush and Alfred Lunt. Not many go further for a friend than Herb Swope. With all his bluster, Major Bowes is actually looking younger under the big load. Jack Dempsey could use a shave. That's the mood today. Helping the other fellow. Boy scouty.

Rex Beach observes about the most rigid routine of any writing man. In New York, Florida, or wherever he is he goes to his typewriter at 8 a. m. and remains until 1 p. m. At his 200-acre Florida farm he raises celery, gladioli and calla lilies and all the work of planting, cultivation and shipping he directs personally.

Kismet! When John McClain, the ship news reporter, was trekking with a movie outfit in East Africa, they arrived at a dinky, lost town one sundown. McClain and a friend were having a beer at a sidewalk table. An agile and saronged young fakir entertained them with surprising tricks. The natives called him Gilli-Gilli.

In the fashionable Rainbow Room a recent night a suave dark young man in immaculate evening clothes stopped at McClain's table doing some remarkable materializations and evanishments. He was Gilli-Gilli.

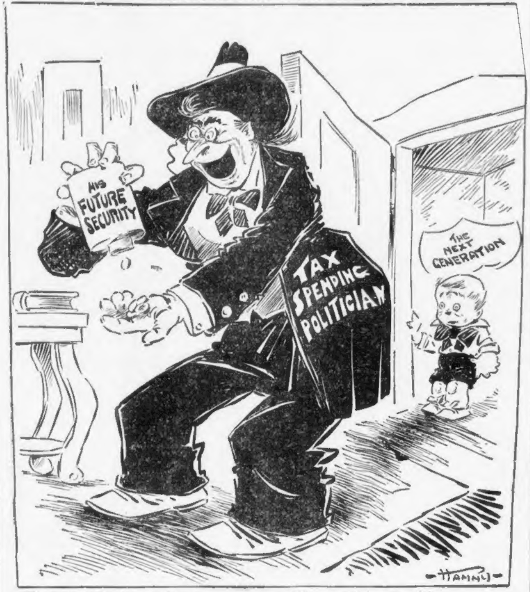
Most of the literary world was surprised at the comparatively small estate left by Rudyard Kipling. It totalled $712,000. No literary man would sneeze at that sum, but Kipling's books have been selling by hundreds of thousands all over the world for years. Arnold Bennett, who attained great popularity but did not live so long, left about $150,000.

H. G. Wells confessed recently he was comparatively poor. Isaac Marcosson is considered one of the richest American writers. Although he has always been a big earner, he inherited the bulk of his fortune.

Of the American poets, Eddie Guest is doubtless the wealthiest of his guild. Aside from his syndicated daily poem his books of collected verse have a standard sale that runs into hundreds of thousands of copies whenever issued. And, of course, Arthur Brisbane is far and away the richest of the columnists.

Robbing the Baby's Bank

(Copyright, 1936, American Newspapers, Inc.)



The meanest burglar ever born,
  A culprit coarse and rank,
May prowl a flat but he would scorn
  To rob a baby's bank.
He frowns upon such lowly tricks,
For he is not in politics.

When politicians do a job
  Of plundering the nation,
They do not hesitate to rob
  The rising generation.
They squander wealth without regret
And plunge the babies into debt.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

You wouldn't keep a filthy drain pipe in your kitchen—

Nor drink from a slime covered pool—

Nor store rotting food in your refrigerator.

You know that such conditions are not only disgusting and unhygienic, but extremely dangerous, and you'd expect to be sick, if not killed, if you practiced them.

Elsie Robinson

Yet every day in scores of ways you do things—without a moment's worry—which are far more disgusting and an infinitely greater menace to your health and life!

Meaning what?

Meaning your MENTAL HYGIENE.

A poisonous drain, a stagnant pool, tainted food—these things are all matters of PHYSICAL HYGIENE which affect our bodies. But thoughts affect our bodies as directly and powerfully as food or germs.

Fear can kill as surely as filth.

Hate can sicken you as surely as slime.

DON'T CLUTTER MIND

Secret envy and self-pity—stored grief or resentment—can taint your life more foully than maggoty meat.

Mental hygiene is far more important than physical hygiene. You can run many a risk of the flesh and yet survive, for the body has power to cleanse and cure itself.

But you cannot clutter your mind with trash, nor corrupt it with nastiness, nor mess it up with malice, without sure and painful penalty.

Fate, you may feel, has done you dirt. You've possibly a list of complaints as long as your arm. You may even have suffered great tragedy and injustice you never deserved. Even so, this much is sure—

The worst deals you've ever had have been dealt you by yourself.

The greatest misery you've ever suffered has been generated in your own head.

YOU ARE TO BLAME

Often you wonder why life has fizzled out—why you're so sick of everything and everybody—why nothing seems worth while any more—and you try to hang the blame on this or that. But it's dollars to doughnuts, stranger, that you yourself are to blame.

What does it profit you to keep a spotless house or model office if you meanwhile maintain a public nuisance back of your own eyebrows?

Feeling sunk?

THEN GET BUSY AND DO A HOUSE-CLEANING JOB ON YOURSELF.

You can keep clutter and corruption out of your own mind as surely as you can keep them out of your refrigerator or file. You can throw open your spirit to the cleansing sunshine of healthy habits as easily as you can throw open your kitchen or office windows.

And there's no more reason or justification for lugging around yesterday's hates, hurts or heartbreaks than for keeping a dead cat on your living room table.

Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

This is the time of year when the vamp, like the moth-miller, begins to be most dangerous. Watch out!

There are male vamps as well as female vamps, and, like poets, they are BORN that way and are practically incurable. They are "addicts," who will limp down to the grave in pursuit of a new adventure, a new conquest or a new thrill. To them, love is just a "game" of which they never tire.

If you are a glutton for punishment, marry a drink-addict or dope fiend; but, unless you are bent on self-destruction, don't marry a love addict in the hope that you may "save him." For you will never save him for YOURSELF!

The masculine love addict can never become a one-woman man because no one woman can ever satisfy his hungry vanity—that "white elephant" which must be eternally fed. Rheumatism cannot halt him in the love chase; and the harder his arteries, the softer his heart—and his head.

No wedding-ring and no wedding vows will ever bind his roving fancy or deaden his thirst for admiration, novelty and the stimulation of another conquest.

His heart is like a crosstown bus—in which there is always "room for one more." Or like a barber-shop, in which the cry is always "Next!" He cannot make his eyes behave—even at his own wedding!

Just one moth-miller can be the finish of the best wool-sweater—and just one marriage to a love-moth can finish a woman!

Today's Text: "In the day shalt thou make thy plant to grow."—Isaiah 17:11.

History of Insurance

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Insurance Week signalizes one of the finest achievements in social well-being of modern times, and yet when you start back-trailing insurance, you wind up in a sixteenth-century London pot house, with a crowd of roysterers whooping it up over flagons of ale. Badgering one William Gibbons, the boys in the backroom made a bet with him that he would not live a year. The wager was 400 pounds, the stakes being pooled by the merrymakers.

Edwin C. Hill

That was in 1538. The ruddy and jovial Gibbons, who would have fooled a modern actuary, died 20 days before the end of the year. Four hundred pounds was a lot of money then as now, and the lads at the ale house decided to welsh. They refused payment to Gibbons' heirs on the ground that a 12-month year was 12 times four weeks at 28 days and that, therefore, Gibbons had died just nine days too late.

It was a novel case in the courts. Blackstone's cue in the world drama wasn't due for nearly 200 years, and the common law had not then enunciated the principle that the law cannot enforce a gambling contract. So the judges went into a long and distressed huddle and came out with a decision for the Gibbons heirs. The stakeholders paid up, and on that date there was recorded the first payment of a life insurance policy.

BIRTH OF INSURANCE

The first permanent insurance business established in America was the Philadelphia Contributionship, a big name for a small fire insurance company, organized in 1752. Benjamin Franklin was on the board of directors. In 1759, the Presbyterian Church of New York and Pennsylvania created "a corporation for the relief of poor and distressed widows and children of Presbyterian Ministers."

In the early days of insurance, they had some quaint ideas of what constituted a good insurance risk. A bold and boisterous man who could down a flagon at a gulp was considered a better bet than a cautious and abstemious citizen. There is one historic instance of a Londoner who tried to work up an insurance bet with his friends, but was barred on the ground that he was a total abstainer from liquor. No man with such eccentric ideas was apt to live long, they argued. The citizen was outraged and organized an insurance company which risked money on teetotalers only.

A BAY STATE PIONEER

Our own Elizur Wright was a bold and intelligent pioneer of the type of insurance benefits which we enjoy today. In 1858 he got a bill through the Massachusetts legislature which required all insurance companies to maintain a reserve deducted from each premium on the basis of mathematical calculation.

Twenty years ago group insurance was originated and soon proved one of the most important social developments of the age. Business insurance, originated with the protection of treasure ships that plied between the old and new worlds, preceeded life insurance by a century or two.

Travel hazards were appalling in those days. Yellowed records of Columbus' age tell of sea serpents who devoured entire crews. That might have been just selling talk by enterprising marine insurance salesmen—in fact, there are indications that it was just that—but there were perils enough as it was, and Spain and England worked up some sound principles of marine insurance, but with rates of 50 per cent of the value of the treasure.

Such were the first crude efforts to fend against future ills which today have evolved the amazingly accurate science of the great insurance companies. Ask any group of your friends what they want most in the world and the chances are that the answers will be, almost without exception, "security for myself and family."

Modern life insurance has come nearer to providing security than anything else in this chaotic world. Here's a salute to Insurance Week and its vanguard against disaster. And another flagon of ale for the boys in the Drury Lane tavern. They didn't know what they were starting.

Story-Telling Statistics

By William Frederick Bigelow

Reprinted from the March Issue of Good Housekeeping.

Several years ago, under the heading "Statistics Somehow Wrong," we read a columnist's complaint about the publicity that was being given to marriages that failed; he was sure he was being misled by the folks who were going around declaring that one out of every seven or eight marriages—they say six now—was ending in divorce.

He frankly said he didn't believe it, for if it were true, he just couldn't avoid knowing more divorced people than he did.

Well, there wasn't any truth in the statistics as they were being interpreted. We tracked that story down ourselves, and, while we found that the number of divorces was correct as given, we also found that it was only one out of every 140 marriages that was going out by the way of the Divorce Court.

With a ratio like that, most people can go along for years without encountering a divorce among their friends.

THE WEALTH FALLACY

Now there are some other statistics that we have been wondering about for a long time—have been wanting to complain about, too, for their implications are misleading, vicious. It has been stated time and again that a handful of rich men own most of this country—that 10 per cent of the people own 80 to 90 per cent of the wealth. Knowing fewer rich people than we did divorced ones, we thought that statement sounded silly, too.

That is really what we always thought, but we had not found the figures to prove that we were right or wrong. Not until W. J. Cameron of the Ford Motor Company, quoting the records, stated emphatically that no rich men own us; we are our own masters.

"About 72 per cent of the nation's wealth is held by ordinary individual owners," said Mr. Cameron. There you have it. We, the people, own approximately 17,000,000 of the 25,000,000 houses and lots in this country. They constitute the largest single block—22 per cent—of wealth, totaling, in 1929, $102,000,000,000. We, the people, own farms that in 1930 were worth over $50,000,000,000. We, the people, own another $50,000,000,000 worth of personal property.

ALL IN TAX MESH

The value of our stocks and bonds is unknown, but all these things that we own represent nearly three-quarters of the country's total wealth.

But the other side of this last picture isn't so pleasant. As we, the people, own the biggest part of the country, so we are paying the biggest part of the taxes, too.

The base here is even broader than is our ownership of the wealth, for those who own nothing but the clothes they wear and perhaps the furniture in the houses they rent are caught in the tax mesh just the same as the rich and the average man.

"No matter what anyone may say about making the rich and the corporations pay the taxes, in the end they come out of the people who toil," said Calvin Coolidge.

The next time you meet a statistic that seems to be dressed up for publicity, ask it for its credentials.
